BATTLE OF AISNE CONTINUES; UNDECISIVE RESULTS

Germans Continue to Fortify Position, Make Counter Attacks

Several New German Generals Take the Field in France

RICHARD HARDING DAVIS, AT SOISSONS SECOND DAY, DESCRIBES BATTLE

Roads Beyond Meaux Show That Retreating Germans Fought All the Way—Fagged-Out Horses Shot, Motor Trucks Burned When Gasoline Gave Out.

By Richard Harding Davis.

(Copyright, 1914, by the Wheeler Syndicate.)

PARIS, Sept. 13 (delayed by censor).—The struggle for the possession of Soissons lasted two days. The second day's battle, which I witnessed, ended with the city in the possession of the French. It was part of the seven days of continuous fighting that began Sept. 6 at Meaux.

Then, the German left wing, consisting of the army of Gen. von Kluck, was within 10 miles of Paris. But the French and English, instead of meeting the advance with a defense, themselves attacked. Steadily, all of last week, at the rate of 10 miles a day, they have been driving the Germans back across the Aisne and the Marne and so have saved Paris.

When this retrograde movement of the Germans began, those who could not see the nature of the fighting believed that the German line of communication, the one from Aix-la-Chapelle through Belgium, had proved too long, and that the left wing was voluntarily withdrawing to meet the new line, communicating through Luxemburg.

Desperate Resistance Shown Along Roadway.

The fields of battle beyond Meaux, through which it was necessary for me to pass to reach the fight at Soissons, showed no evidence of leisurely withdrawal, but on both sides evidence of most desperate fighting and of artillery fire that was widespread and desolating. That of the Germans, intended to destroy the road from Meaux and cover their retreat, showed marksmanship so accurate and execution so terrible as, while it lasted, to render pursuit impossible.

The battlefield stretches from the hills three miles north of Meaux, for four miles along the road, and a mile to each side. The road is lined with poplars three feet across, and as high as a five-story building. For four miles the road was piled with branches of the trees.

The trees themselves were split as by lightning, or torn in half as, with your hands, you could tear apart a loaf of bread. Through some, solid shell had passed along clean holes. Others looked as though drunken woodsmen with axes from roots to topmost branches had slashed them in crazy fury.

Many Killed by Terrific Bombardment.

Some shells had broken solid trunks in two as a hurricane snaps a mast. That no human being could survive such a bombardment I saw many grewsome proofs. In one place for a mile the road was lined with those wicker baskets in which Germans carry their ammunition. These were filled with shells unexploded, and behind the trenches were hundreds more of these baskets, some as large as lobster pots or umbrella stands, for the shells of the siege guns, and others each of three compartments.

For shrapnel lay in gutters along the road, and in the wheat fields on each side the brass shells flashed in the sunshine like tiny mirrors. The four miles of countryside, over which for four days each army had plowed the earth with shells, was the picture of complete desolation. The route of the German army was marked by knapsacks, uniform and accountrements, scattered over the fields on each hand as far as one could see.

Red Cross flags hanging from bushes showed where there had been dressing stations. Under them were bloodstains, bandages and clothing and boots in heaps as high as a man's chest, and the bodies of those German soldiers that the first-aid had failed to save. After death, the body is mercifully robbed of its human aspect. You are spared the thought that what is lying in the trenches among the shattered trees and in the wheat fields, staring up at the sky, once was man. It appears to be only a bundle of clothes, a scarecrow that was tumbled among the grain.

"Missing" Frequently Buried, Unidentified.

But it gives a terrible meaning to the word "Missing" when you read in the reports from the war office that 5000 are "Missing." You like to think of them safely cared for in a hospital or dragging out the period of the war as prisoners, but the real missing are those I saw today, the unidentified dead. Some peasant will bury them tonight or tomorrow but he will not know the purpose of the medal each wears around his neck. (Each German soldier wears a medal with a number corresponding to his number on the army roll, for purposes of identification.)

With him will be buried his name and the number of his regiment. No one will know where he fell or where he lies. Someone will always hope that he will return. For among the dead his name did not appear. He was reported only as missing.

The utter wastefulness of war was seldom more clearly shown. Swollen

It is the use of these motor trucks that has given the German army its greatest mobility on its invasion of France, enabling it to make advances of 25 miles a day.

REPLACING OF NEW STAMP TAX AFTER YEAR IS PROPOSED

Many Democrats Favor Shift of War Levy to Incomes as Soon as Possible.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—A brand-new proposition on incomes will be made by one or more members of the Ways and Means Committee when consideration of the bill begins. It is the purpose of certain Democrats to add one-half of a cent to the present income tax all down the line, and let the sum collected in this way take the place of the stamp tax provided for by Mr. Underwood's plan after it has run a year.

This, the friends of the income tax proposition say, would meet the argument that such a tax would not be responsive. In other words, they say, let the stamp tax run for a year and bring in $35,000,000, but at the end of that time substitute for it the income tax.

The war tax situation as it stands is that Chairman Underwood and other members of the Ways and Means Committee are ready to frame a bill that will provide a tax on beer at the rate of 50 cents a barrel, and sweet wines at 20 cents a gallon, and dry wines at 12½; a stamp tax on commercial paper, a tax on tobacco manufacturers and dealers, this being a privilege, and 2 cents a gallon on gasoline.

Prospect of large revenues from a stamp tax on insurance policies and land conveyances has led the Democrats to plan to eliminate the tax on checks from the bill. Some members hope to abandon the checks tax altogether, but if that is not feasible it will be proposed to exempt all checks under $50.

No effort will be made by the House Committee to substitute a graduated tax on automobiles based upon manufacturers' value, for the 2-cent tax on gasoline. Such an effort may be made, however, when the bill reaches the Senate.

Many amendments will be offered to the war tax bill when it reaches the floor of the House and Senate. There are Congressmen who would tax cigarettes, cigars, soft drinks and whisky. The Senate seems to favor a tax of 4 cents or more a gallon on unrectified spirits.

GERMANY'S REPLY TO WILSON ON PEACE IS NONCOMMITAL

President Gets Message From Chancellor and Further Word Is Expected—Wilson Replies to Kaiser as to Belgians.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—President Wilson announced today he had received from the Imperial Chancellor of Germany a non-committal reply to his inquiry into the report that Emperor William was willing to discuss terms of peace.

President Wilson said there was nothing to indicate whether the inquiry had been brought to the attention of Emperor William. The opinion prevails in official circles that a further reply is expected.

President Wilson's answer to the message of protest from President Poincare of France, who charged the German army with using dumdum bullets, has been prepared today, and was ready to be cabled.

While the text had not been given out at the White House, it was understood that Mr. Wilson's reply followed the lines of his answer to Emperor William, who in a message to the President accused the allies of using dumdum bullets, and his verbal address to the Belgian commission that called on him yesterday to protest against alleged atrocities by the Germans in Belgium.

In both of these Mr. Wilson made it plain that the United States at this time cannot pass judgment on or take part in any controversies between the countries now at war. Settlement of these matters, he said, must await the termination of the war, which he prayed might be very soon.

"I received your Imperial Majesty's important communication of the 7th and have read it with gravest interest and concern. I am honored that you should have turned to me for an impartial judgment as the representative of a people truly disinterested as respects the present war, and truly desirous of knowing and accepting the truth.

"You will, I am sure, not expect me to say more. Presently, I pray God very soon, this war will be over. The day of accounting will then come. When I take it for granted the nations of Europe will assemble to determine a settlement. Where wrongs have been committed, their consequences and the relative responsibility involved will be assessed. The nations of the world have fortunately, by agreement, made a plan for such a reckoning and settlement. What such a plan cannot compass, the opinion of mankind, the final arbiter of such matters, will supply.

"It would be unwise, it would be premature, for a single government, however fortunately separated from the present struggle, it would even be inconsistent with the neutral position of any nation, which, like this, has no part in the contest, to form or express a final judgment.

"I speak thus frankly, because I know that you will expect and wish me to do so as one friend should to another, and because I feel sure that such a reservation of judgment until the end of the war, when all its events and circumstances can be seen in their entirety, and in their true relation, will commend itself to you as a true expression of sincere neutrality.

"WOODROW WILSON."

The Kaiser's charge as to dumdum bullets, and the French countercharge on the same subject, have not alleged that such bullets were found in the body of any dead or wounded soldier, but only that a supply of the bullets were found in captured stores. Dumdum bullets are of soft lead, and spread upon striking a bone. Their use is forbidden by The Hague rules of war.

British Protest to United States Useless, Says Ackland.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—In the House of Commons this afternoon Francis Dyke Ackland, Parliamentary Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, stated that the British Government had no objection to an inquiry being made with regard to the alleged use of dumdum bullets, and reported atrocities.

The Government would participate in such an inquiry, he said, but as to the suggestion that it should ask the United States to set up a committee of inquiry, he considered that, in view of the reply reported to have been given by President Wilson to Germany, there was no use making proposals to the United States on the subject.

AVERAGE DAILY GERMAN LOSSES IN WEEK, 3200

BERLIN, Sept. 17, via London.—An official casualty list published today shows 4563 names.

Mention is made of the hard fighting evidenced on the part of German Polish regiments in East Prussia. For example, three companies of the Fifty-ninth Infantry, stationed at Soldau, lost 356 men. The Forty-seventh Infantry, with headquarters at Posen, suffered 268 casualties. A majority of both regiments are Polish. A battalion of the 136th Infantry, stationed at Strassburg, lost 346 men, one company alone losing seven officers and 114 men.

A battalion of the 142d Infantry of Baden-Baden reported the loss of 10 officers and 249 men. Two battalions of the 143d Infantry, stationed at Strassburg, lost 13 officers and 498 men.

Despite these losses the organizations fought on heroically, the official announcement says.

The total of the published German casualties to date are 35,786 killed, wounded or missing. Since last week the average daily losses are shown by the casualty lists to be 3200. Among the killed on Sept. 14 was Prince Otto Victor of Schoenburg-Waldenburg, a First Lieutenant of the Hussar Guards and a brother of the Princess of Wied.

Major-General Nieland was killed while leading his brigade in a street fight in a French city Aug. 27.

Count Kirchbach, commander of the Tenth Reserve Corps, died on Sept. 3. On being mortally wounded he gave up his command to Gen. von Eben.

Gen. Hindenberg's advance in East Prussia is described as having gone to such an extent that a regulation concerning the importation of Russian cattle, which are being used for the army, is being issued. Experiments made in the manufacture of a new bread, composed of rye flour and potatoes and starch, are declared to have had most satisfactory results.

HARD PRESSED ARMY OF CROWN PRINCE MAY DETERMINE OUTCOME

Invaders Are in Positions They Selected, and Have Been Reinforced From Their Forces in Lorraine—Possibly 3,000,000 Men Engaged.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

PARIS, Sept. 17, 3:20 p. m.—The official report issued in Paris this afternoon on the progress of the fighting northeast of the capital, shows that the great battle is continuing with undecisive results.

The resistance of the Germans has not been broken, although at certain points they are described as giving back slightly. At other points they continue to fortify themselves.

"First—On our left wing the resistance of the enemy on the heights to the north of the River Aisne has continued, in spite of the fact that the enemy gave back slightly at certain points.

"Second—On the center between Berry-au-Bac on the Aisne and the Argonne, the situation shows no change. The enemy continues to fortify himself along the line previously indicated. Between the Argonne and the Meuse, the Germans are intrenching themselves in the vicinity of Montfaucon. In the Woevre district we have come in contact with several detachments of the enemy between Etain and Thiancourt.

"Third—On our right wing in Lorraine and the Vosges, there has been no change.

"Summing up, the battle is being continued along the entire front between the River Oise and the River Meuse. The Germans occupy positions organized for defense and armed with heavy artillery.

"Our progress is of necessity slow, but our troops are animated by a spirit of offensive action and they are giving evidence of vigor and enthusiasm. They have repulsed with success the counter-attacks undertaken by the enemy both during the day and at night. The morale of the French soldiers is excellent.

"The Austrian armies evacuating Galicia are in full rout. Their losses in killed, wounded and prisoners are estimated at several hundred thousand men. The German army corps which went to their succor are retreating."

(Berry-Au-Bac is 11 miles northwest of Rheims and about twenty-five miles east of Soissons. Etain is 12 miles to the northeast of Verdun, and Thiancourt is 28 miles southeast of the same place.)

Berlin Says Front Is Unchanged; New Man Heads the Second Army

BERLIN, Sept. 17, by wireless via Sayville, L. I.—An official report given out at army headquarters at midnight (Wednesday) says that the French front remains unchanged. The French attacks on a number of points Tuesday night and Wednesday were successfully repulsed by the Germans, who made a number of victorious counter attacks.

Owing to illness, Gen. von Hausen, former commander of the second or Saxon army, has been replaced by Gen. von Einem, former Minister of War. Gen. von Hausen is 68 years old.

Another change in leadership has taken place in the Fourteenth Reserve Corps, where Gen. von Schubert has been replaced by Quartermaster-General von Stein, the well-known editor of the official war reports and author of laconic war bulletins.

It is reported here from Vienna that 1800 Galician traitors have been brought into Graz, Austria, where they are awaiting sentence. They are said to have been paid by Russia to signal the positions of Austrian troops to the Russian army.

Glimpse of the Great Battle.

By an Associated Press Correspondent with the French Forces.

NEAR BRAISNE ON FRENCH LEFT CENTER, Wednesday, Sept. 16 via Paris, Sept. 17, 3:46 p. m.—There is an incessant roar of artillery along the entire line of battle in the vicinity of Braine, where, for the last four days, the great forces of the allies and the Germans have been in close grips.

The field itself over which the armies are fighting is broken; consequently there is comparatively little visible evidence of the terrific struggle in progress, although hundreds of thousands of men are engaged in this vicinity. Detachments of artillery from the allied front fire shells with great rapidity at the German positions.

Overhead French and British aeroplanes are flying hither and thither endeavoring to locate the positions of the big German guns. These, however, are so well masked that their emplacement has not yet been discovered, and they continue incessantly to launch their great projectiles in the direction of the allied forces.

750,000 GERMAN TROOPS CONCENTRATED FOR MARCH AGAINST WARSAW

German aeroplanes appear to have vanished from the scene of action. For about a week past none has been observed, and British sharpshooters declare that they have accounted for so many that the others now hesitate to take the air.

3,000,000 Men Engaged in Battle Along 110 Mile Line

LONDON, Sept. 17.—The front of the opposing armies along the Aisne is, as the crow flies, 110 miles. With the original armies engaged and the reinforcements which have reached them since battle was given, the forces aggregate probably 3,000,000 men. Making allowances for the deviation north of Loan, the line must be quite 150 miles long, so there is ample room for successes on one part of the field and reverses elsewhere.

The Germans are in their selected positions with strong reinforcements brought up from Lorraine; consequently this great battle may yet prove to be one of the most decisive and momentous of the war.

Whether the Germans have found it necessary or advisable to turn and engage in a general action or not, this great battle wages fiercely and rivals in importance the battles of the Marne.

The British and French armies seem to be attempting to repeat on the Aisne the turning movements carried out so successfully on the Marne and in the present case they have the additional incentive of knowing, should the German right again be turned, there are no great defensive positions behind the invaders until they reach the River Meuse.

The position of the army of the German Crown Prince, making its way toward the Stenay Gap, remains full of interest. The French army which barred the exit of the Crown Prince by Toul is still hurrying in pursuit of him.

The allies' right pursues the Crown Prince. All reports indicate that the latter is quite as demoralized as was Von Kluck's army, and is suffering equally from lack of provisions and ammunition. While Von Kluck has no doubt received what he needs in this respect, it is doubtful if the Crown Prince has.

The issue of the battle may depend upon the condition of the Crown Prince's army, and whether he can make a stand and prevent the allies from turning the German left.

Some of the military experts still think that the Germans hope by this action only to check the onrush of the allies and that later they will take up the defensive on the Namur line.

There is no confirmation of the reported German abandonment of Liege, but it would not be surprising in the opinion of observers in London, to see the Germans quit Belgium altogether if there is any truth in the report that the Eastern arena of the war has become the decisive position in German eyes and that Germany will be content for the present to remain a defensive attitude in the west.

(Stenay Gap is a pass in the mountains lying parallel to the River Meuse. The town of Stenay, from which it takes its name, is 25 miles due north of Verdun. Passage through the Gap and over the Meuse River would let the Crown Prince's army into Belgium or Luxembourg, and thence put the army in connection with the reinforcements and supplies of Germany.)

French Embassy Gives Battle Line

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—The French Embassy today announced receipt of the following dispatch from Bordeaux:

"On the 14th and 15th of September the rear of the enemy has been in touch with the pursuing forces of our army. The rear of the enemy has been reinforced by German troops. The enemy was forced to accept battle along the whole front, part of which was strongly organized.

"The allies are on the north of Vic-Sur-Aisne, Soissons and Laon, and also the high hills on the north of Rheims. The line reaches on the north to Ville-Sur-Tourve, a town on the west of the Argonne Mountains, and continues over the Argonne by a line passing to the north of Varennes. This last place has been evacuated by the enemy, who has reached the River Meuse, close to the forest of Forges on the north of Verdun."

Von Hindenberg Reported Called Westward

COPENHAGEN, Via London, Sept. 17.—Gen. Von Hindenberg, who has been directing the army forces in East Prussia, has been urgently summoned from East Prussia to take command of a division in the western area, according to a message received here from Stockholm.

GALICIANS GAVE DATA TO RUSSIANS ON AUSTRIAN PLAN

Returning Refugee Tells How Czar's Troops Were Aided in Their Successes.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—Samuel Rezner, whose address is given as 34 East Fifty-eighth street, New York City, has arrived in London from Halicz, a town of Austria-Hungary, near the Russian border, after having seen much of the fighting between the Russians and Austrians.

Rezner was visiting a brother, a farmer, when the war began. He says the Galicians are so friendly to the Russians and unfriendly to the Austrians that they showed the Russian army all the roads in the province, and gave full information concerning the Austrian troops and their movements, enabling the invaders to make successful excursions. Finally the Austrian Generals removed the Slav troops from Galicia, replacing them with soldiers who were bitter enemies of the Russians.

"The fighting became so bad that my brother and I decided to take a team and drive away from the line," said Rezner. "We saw fighting at Halicz, Nisznow and several other towns. The Austrians were unsuccessful because the Russians seemed to have complete information about their movements."

He added that there was great terror throughout Western Austria-Hungary because of the Russian advance. Vienna is quiet, though there is fear that the Russians will overrun the capital. The food supply probably is somewhat limited, as the dealers permit a single person to have only a small quantity of flour and other staples at one time. The prices of food in Vienna are high.

WAR EXPECTED TO RECONCILE FRANCE AND THE CHURCH

By H. COZENS HARDY,

PARIS, Sept. 17.—It looks as if the war may result in the re-establishment of an entente cordiale between the church and state in France.

Hundreds of nuns have been recalled from Belgium, to which country they were expelled when the religious orders were dissolved, and are working as hospital nurses.

Moreover, there are 22,000 monks on the battlefield. It is thought impossible that the heroic work of both nuns and monks should be lost on a public which is ever quick to recognize devotion to duty.

We probably never shall see the concordat in France again, but under a new Pope it is believed that the war will induce a better understanding between church and Government. Churches still remain the property of the state, but I think we at least shall see an era in which not only national monuments, like Notre Dame, but all churches will be maintained and repaired at public expense.

U. S. Stocks of Britain's Foes Not Good for London Delivery

LONDON, Sept. 17.—The London Stock Exchange committee announced today that it soon would fix a date after which American stocks in the name of alien enemies will cease to be good for delivery.

BEATEN AUSTRIAN ARMY RESTS UNDER PRZEMYSL'S GUNS

London Believes Battered Troops Will Try to Unite With Another Force at Cracow and Attempt to Block Russian Advance on German Capital.

GERMANS EXPECTED TO MOVE ON WARSAW

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 17. — Dispatches from Russian sources are interpreted here as meaning that the terribly battered second Austrian army is safe under the guns of Przemysl, but with the Russians only 19 miles away. Desperate efforts probably will be made to form a junction with the Fourth Austrian army with the idea of reorganizing with Cracow as the base.

The Russians have crossed the River San and are hammering away at the retreating Austro-German forces. Despite their unprecedented losses the forces of the Germanic allies seem to retain their fighting organization, and if they gain Cracow they may prevent the Russian right from making a march on Berlin from Warsaw.

The Petrograd military critics express the belief that the Germans, having recognized the strategic unimportance of East Prussian operations, will detach their army away from that region and begin a march on Warsaw, thus forestalling a Russian offensive on Berlin from that direction.

The position of Grodek, 13 miles west of Lemberg, occupied by the Russians, is of great natural strength, provides an ideal operating base and, in case of a counter attack can be easily defended.

The Servians and Montenegrins continuing their campaign in Bosnia and Herzegovina, are well within these provinces and are optimistically planning a march on Budapest.

The Central News has given out a dispatch from its correspondent at Petrograd, who says that the retreating Austrian army in Galicia has lost all discipline and the retirement has become a rout.

According to a report from Vienna, the correspondent says, Emperor Francis-Joseph has left the Austrian capital for an unannounced destination.

RUSSIAN VICTORS ON WHOLE FRONT

LONDON, Sept. 17.—In summing up recent Russian operations the Petrograd correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Co. says:

"The Russians have been successful in the fighting with the retreating Austrians along the whole front and news is continuously coming in of the capture of further prisoners and guns. On the left bank of the River San the Russians have successfully attacked the Austrians, who are retreating.

"In Eastern Prussia all of the German efforts to surround a portion of the Russians have failed."

Germans Flee From Poland.

A Petrograd dispatch to the Daily Telegraph says:

"The news of the Russian victories, say correspondents at the front, have caused a headlong flight among the Germans in the districts of Czenstochowa, Klobucko, Sieradz and Kalisz, Russian Poland. Long transports of munitions and stores are moving and every day loaded trains leave Czentoschowa for Kraiseburg, Silesia.

"Russian patrols are constantly widening their radius of action. The inhabitants of Zdunskawola, southeast of Kalisz, have been given notice to evacuate the town in three days, as it is to be fortified. A special train is being provided for those who wish to go to Germany."

The Daily Mail Petrograd correspondent, describing the possibility of a German invasion of Poland, says:

"It is believed the Germans now have concentrated 750,000 men in East Prussia, a far greater number than is required for mere defensive movement. As there would be little purpose in attempting to drive the Russian General Rennenkampff, out of his strong position at Kovno and venturing into the interior of Russia, there is every reason to surmise that the object of the east German concentration is an invasion of Poland and an attempt to capture Warsaw.

"If this were attained it would not only safeguard Eastern Prussia, but would also dislodge a great portion of the Russian forces now operating in Galicia, thus easing the pressure there."

Russians Near Przemysl.

A dispatch from Petrograd to the Reuter Telegram Co. gives this outline of the situation in Galicia:

"The position of Grodek, occupied by the Russians, is 18 miles west of Lemberg and is situated on the heights, under which a chain of six almost connecting lakes stretch out toward the Russian frontier, forming a natural defense for 14 miles running north and south. The Austrians abandoned this position after the capture of Lemberg.

"Mosciska, to which the Russians have advanced, is a little over 40 miles west of Lemberg, on the main line between Przemysl and Lemberg. The shattered Second Austrian army was evidently incaapble of staying the Hussian advance and took refuge in Przemysl, from which the Russians, according to the latest official report, are only 19 miles away.

"Great enthusiasm continues to prevail throughout Russia and all classes are doing their utmost to help in the present emergency. At Moscow the Barbers' Guild offered to shave and cut the hair of soldiers free of charge, while at Vilna 15 cab drivers have offered their services for the transportation of the wounded."

A Petrograd special dispatch to the Times says:

"According to the latest information available here the Germans, realizing the futility of the withdrawal of eight army corps from their western front, are returning their first line of troops from East Prussia westward.

"Military writers here are still puzzling over the problem why Germany should have made the blunder of sending such an enormous army to East Prussia, where it was bound to remain either inactive or make an attempt to invade Russia with the almost complete certainty of sharing the fate of the Austrian forces in Galicia.

"The real explanation seems to be that when half the population of East Prussia stampeded before Gen. Rennenkampff, carrying the panic to Berlin, Germany felt compelled to tranquilize the population by sending a great army to the area occupied by the Russians."

AUSTRIAN OFFICE TELLS OF VICTORY

LONDON, Sept. 17.—Reuter's Amsterdan correspondent sends the following official communication issued by the Austrian War Office yesterday:

"Our victories near Hulzwa (?) have opened up the possibility of attacking the strong Russian forces that have entered East Galicia.

"The necessity having arisen to strengthen the Austrians retreating after the battle east of Lemberg, the victorious army, which defeated the Russians near Komarno (25 miles southwest of Lemberg), received orders for short pursuits of the Russians, to leave behind its inferior forces and advance in the direction of Lemberg. This order was carried out Sept. 4.

"It appears that the Russians intended a flank movement in the direction of Lublin, after having occupied the capital of Galicia (Lemberg), without reckoning with our army, which stood behind the Grodek Lake district; but this army was ready to assist the Austrians working from the north.

"On Sept. 5 the later army already had passed the railroad lines of Rawa Ruska and Horynier. On the next day it advanced to Kurniki and on the seventh a heavy battle against the strong Russian forces advancing northward took place. On the night our offensive opened on a 70-kilometer (about 40 miles) front, and was successful until the eleventh, especially on the southern wing, near Lemberg.

"Despite these successes the necessity arose to form a new grouping of our forces, as the north wing of our army near Rawa Ruska was threatened by superior Russian forces near Krasnik and between Krasnik and the battlefields of Lemberg.

"Archduke Frederick and Charles Francis Joseph on the tenth were present at the vigorous battle east of Grodek.

"During the five days' battle both sides suffered severely, especially during the Russian night attack near Rawa Ruska. Numerous prisoners were taken. Up to the present 41,000 Russians and 8000 Servian prisoners and 300 field guns have been captured."

Austrian Correspondents Lay Stress on Russian Numerical Superiority.

By Associated Press.

VIENNA, via Paris, Sept. 17.—Messages from special correspondents in Galicia lay stress on the numerical superiority of the Russians whose army divisions are composed of 16 battalions of infantry with cavalry and artillery, and unlimited supplies of ammunition. The Russiana divisions are considerably stronger than the Austrians, especially as regards artillery.

Austrian soldiers declare that for every 10 Russians killed 20 came in their places. The Russian artillery fire, they said, was wonderfully good, but the infantry work was of an inferior kind.

The wounded continue to arrive in Vienna in great numbers. Eight thousand were brought in on Sunday alone. The hospitals and the various public buildings converted into temporary nursing homes are terribly crowded. Ten thousand wounded are being cared for in the rotunda of the exhibition building in the Prater, the Imperial Park. Sunday afternoon 30,000 persons visited the soldiers in the general hospital.

The bank statement shows that withdrawals during August were more than $3,000,000.

London Restricts Lighting to Guard Against Bombs

LONDON, Sept. 17.—In a statement, Sir Edward R. Henry, Commissioner of Police, expresses the hope that the restrictions placed on street and shop illuminations as a precautionary measure against Zeppelin raids on London, may be modified later.

But for the present, Sir Edward says, he is advised by the air department of the admiralty that it is desirable in the interest of public safety that they be continued.

Day's War Operations on the East German and Austrian Frontiers

THE two imperiled Austrian armies, commanded by Gens. Dankl and Auffenberg and driven with an estimated loss of 350,000 men, before the victorious Russians, have managed to unite at Reszow, which lies between the triangle formed by the River San and the fortified positions at Jaroslaw or Jaroslav and Przemysl. Reszow is midway between Jaroslav and Przemysl, which are 28 miles apart. Both are about 50 miles from Lemberg, taken several days ago by the Russians, who are today reported as being only 19 miles from the Austrian line. The scene is about 375 miles from Vienna, to which, with the Austrian armies bottled up, the way is now open for the Czar's troops. The Russians are also striking in the direction of Posen, which is 50 miles from the Russian boundary line and 168 miles from Berlin. The strong German position at Koenigsberg, where the house of Hohenzollern received its crown, is also menaced with investment.

ITALIAN ATTACHE LEAVES BERLIN WHEN INSULTED

Remark as to Rome's Attitude Said to Have Been Made in Official Salon.

PARIS, Sept. 17.—According to an article in the newspaper Avanti of Milan, Italy, the military attache of Italy has quit Berlin because of an insulting remark concerning the attitude of Italy in the war, made in the official salon.

BRITISH SAILOR TELLS HOW THE E-9 SANK GERMAN SHIP

Submarine Fired Two Torpedoes at Cruiser Hela Six Miles Off German Coast.

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—The Harwich correspondent of the Daily Telegraph sends this story of how the German cruiser Hela was destroyed, as told by one of the crew of submarine E—9:

"In the early hours of Sunday morning two or three British submarines were stalking the Hela about six miles off the German coast. The wind was freshening and the sea was beginning to get rougher. The E—9 came to the surface at 6:30 o'clock and sighted the enemy, which was seen to be within range.

"With all possible speed the E—9 dived and at a suitable depth launched two torpedoes at intervals of 15 seconds. Whether both struck is not definitely known, but one of them certainly was effective, as the explosion followed.

"The E—9 remained below about a quarter of an hour and then came to the surface briefly for a survey, which showed the Hela listing badly. There were other German ships in the vicinity but none were active fighting units.

"The submarine prudently dived again at once. After an interval something over a quarter of an hour, it came to the surface again, but the Hela had disappeared.

"The submarine got away safely, but was unable to make a report of her achievement to the admiralty until today, when she first got within her wireless range. The submarine crew said their boat was never seen by the enemy either before or after the blow was struck."

50 Deaths Daily of German Officers Published in Berlin

LONDON, Sept. 17.—The Berlin correspondent of the New Rotterdam Courant writes that the most gloomy sights to be seen in these days are the death notices in the dignified Kreuz Zeitung. The families of officers thus make known the blows that have fallen on them.

In the last few days, says the correspondent, this aristocratic German newspaper has published 50 announcements of the death of officers every evening. Powerful families virtually have been extinguished, but the seemingly endless misery is borne with the greatest resignation by all. An old lady appeared yesterday at the official information bureau and learned that her three sons were all dead. Yet in her feeling of patriotism she found strength to bear the blow.

FRENCH OLYMPIC ATHLETE SPRINTS AWAY FROM ENEMY

Georges Andrea Recommended for Medal for Capturing Flag in Lorraine.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—Corporal Georges Andrea, mentioned in the dispatches as promoted and recommended for a medal, is the French athlete who competed with Harry Porter, the American high jumper, in the London Olympic games, says the Chronicle's correspondent at Bordeaux, who sends the following account of the feat which won for Andrea the commendation of the French Premier.

Andrea, who is with the French army in Lorraine, went with six men into a village to find rooms for their officers. In the market place was a large band of Germans, who immediately set upon them. Andrea snatched a sabre from the German nearest him and killed two men with it.

By this time he saw that his companions were dead or captured, so he grabbed a flag from the German, and putting it under his arm, raced through the village street as though attempting a try in Rugby football. Numbers of Germans followed. After sprinting a quarter of a mile, he left his pursuers far behind, and later rejoined his regiment with the flag, having escaped a shower of bullets.

Andrea wrote to a sportsman friend, saying: "This is hell; we are lying in the trenches under German artillery fire, but are not allowed to reply. This is the only time I find to write my correspondence."

Kaiser's Brother-in-Law Hurt; Empress Visits Hospital

BERLIN, Sept. 17, via Amsterdam).—Empress Augusta Victoria today visited the hospital named for her and conversed with the wounded officers and men.

Prince Joachim, the youngest son of the Emperor, who is at Bellevue Castle, is said to be recovering from his wounds, but it will be several weeks before he is quite well again.

All four faculties of the University of Koenigsberg have conferred honorary degrees upon Gen. Hindenberg in recognition of his services in repulsing the Russian invaders of East Prussia.

Admits Story of Sinking of Kronprinz Wilhelm Was False

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—A circumstantial story of the sinking of the North German-Lloyd line Kronprinz Wilhelm by the British cruiser Lancaster, brought into this port by Pilot McCarthy aboard the Norwegian freight steamer Hermod, was proved today to be untrue.

McCarthy said that the story had been told him by Pilot Nichols, who yesterday boarded the warship off Ambrose Channel lightship. Nichols admitted to newspaper men this afternoon that he had told such a story to McCarthy and several persons. He confessed that he had been romancing.

Church Attendance Shows Big Increase Since War

By Associated Press.

MANCHESTER, Sept. 17.—Greatly increased attendance at church services is one of the marked effects of the war which has been noted by Manchester clergymen, one of whom, discussing this subject in a Manchester paper, says:

"It is surprising to see as large an attendance at a week-night service as at a Sunday service. It is the instinct of those left at home to find fellowship at such times. But the outstanding factor is that the war is bringing us as a nation into the presence of the realities of life and death."

ENGINEERS BRIDGE AISNE UNDER FIRE; AVIATORS IN DUEL

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—The correspondent of the Times at Havre, in describing the battle of the Aisne, says:

"As opposed to the battle of the Marne, which was a battle of rivers and plains, woodlands and high plateaus, the battle of the Aisne was a river crossing on a scale such as has never before been seen, a triumph of organization and engineering, as much as of courage and fighting powers.

"The time was Saturday evening and the moment had arrived when, if the fleeing host was to be saved, some sort of stand must be made.

"The enemy gathered hurriedly together for a great effort on the heights which overlooked the river. He had his guns placed and his men ready when the British and French troops reached the south bank of the river. Clearly it was essential to the allies that a crossing should be made if the great pursuit was to be continued and the hard-won victory pressed home. But the river was swollen, running swiftly after the recent rains, bridges must be built under a withering fire, they must be maintained undamaged and must be crossed.

Artillery Duel First.

"All the vantage points were held by men rendered desperate and fighting for their lives. It was a terrible prospect, but it did not daunt our splendid forces.

"The attack began Sunday morning with all the dash that characterized the great struggle of the week before. Our guns were brought up, placed in position and a terrible artillery duel opened, for as long as the German artillery remained unsilenced there was little hope of crossing the river.

"During this fire our engineers worked laboriously to bring up great pontoons, while the fire slowly decreased their numbers.

"After some hours of this supreme effort the enemy's guns on the north bank were silenced and the troops began crossing, while the allies' artillery still swept the heights protecting their passage.

Battle of Aeroplanes.

"By sunset, when the cold rain and wind started, the heights were won, the enemy thrown back and our troops were across at three crossing places.

"While this battle was proceeding, a most exciting battle of aeroplanes, German and English, occurred high in the air. It was a great struggle, the machines darting hither and thither till finally the German, wounded, fell to the ground."

Servian Official Statement Says Bosnian Invasion Continues.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—An official statement issued at Nish and forwarded to the Reuter Telegram Co., says the Montenegrin army inflicted a defeat on the enemy near Koulilovo, in the direction of Krastatz and Catzko, Sept. 13.

"The Servian troops on Monday," the statement continues, "took Vishegrad after a desperate struggle and are carrying on the offensive successfully along the left bank of the Drina River.

"After having crossed the Drina near Bayabachta, our troops are advancing successfully into the interior of Bosnia. Desperate fighting continues in the direction of Kroupani. On the Ljubovia-Svornik front, the situation is becoming more favorable to our troops.

"On the Losnitza-Lesnitza front we have prevented the enemy, who had crossed the Drina, from spreading by keeping them cornered on the same bank of the Drina.

"On the Lesnitza-Ratcha front the enemy attempted to cross the Drina near Kratchevina, but the attempt cost them two whole companies.

"On the northern front, in spite of our offensive being crowned with success, our troops have been recalled for strategic reasons.

Censor Keeps 'Too Loquacious' Trooper's Letter From Wife

By Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 12.—An instance of the censor's pitiless treatment of letters from the soldiers at the front to their wives and sweethearts in Paris, is the case of a wife who received the following note from the censor as a substitute for the long letter her husband had written:

"Madam," he said, "your husband is well, but is far too loquacious."

AMERICAN REPORTER WITH GERMAN ARMY FOUND NO CRUELTIES

Associated Press Correspondent Who Traveled 100 Miles With Troops Says They Were Gentle and That Every "Outrage" Susceptible of Inquiry Was Either Imagined or Half Excusable.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—An Associated Press staff correspondent of American birth and antecedents, who was sent from the New York office and was caught in Brussels at the time of the German invasion, who was held prisoner several days and finally escaped to Holland, has sent by mail the following story of his experiences:

"The night before the Germans entered Brussels, when the Belgian civil guards and refugees began pouring into the city from the direction of Louvain, they brought stories of unspeakable German atrocities, maltreatment of old men and children and the violation of women.

"The Belgian capital reeled with apprehension. Within an hour the gayety, the vivacity and brilliancy of the city went out like a broken arc light. The radiance of the cafes was exchanged for darkness; whispering groups of residents broke up hurriedly and locked themselves into their homes, where they put up the shutters and drew in their tri-colored Belgian flags.

"The historic Belgian city went through a state of morbid consternation remarkably like that from which it suffered on June 18, 1815, when it trembled with the fear of a French victory at Waterloo.

Soon Chatting With Enemy.

"In less than 24 hours, the Belgian citizens were chatting comfortably with the German invaders and the allegation of German brutality and demoniacal torture dissolved into one of the myths which have accompanied all wars.

"Neither in Brussels, nor in its environs, was a single offensive act, so far as I know, committed by a German soldier. In a city of more than 500,000 people, invaded by a hostile army of perhaps a quarter of a million soldiers, no act, sufficiently flagrant to demand punishment or to awaken protest, came to my attention.

"The frightful reports that had preceded the German army into Brussels included the disemboweling of old men and the impaling of children on lances, just outside of Louvain. Investigation not only failed to substantiate these rumors, but could not even discover anyone in the immediate vicinity who credited them. An eyewitness of unimpeachable veracity told me the worst behavior he had observed during the first German entry into Louvain (Aug. 19) was that of a German soldier who leaned from his horse and kissed a pretty Flemish girl, who brought him a glass of beer.

"I marched for days with the German columns, often only one day behind the fighting, with the houses that had been burned still smoldering, the ground freshly broken by shells and trampled by horses and men and the memory of the German advance vivid in the minds of the inhabitants.

"I interviewed an average of 20 persons in each of a dozen towns and found only one instance of a noncombatant who had been killed without a justifiable provocation. In this case the evidence did not clearly prove that the man was wantonly murdered.

"He lived in one of the typical small Belgian countryside houses which combine the comforts of home with the lure of a small public bar. This house was at the north end of Merbes le Chateau, a town through which a large part of the German army passed on the road to Maubeuge. A son of the murdered man, whose name was Arthur Nicodem, showed me blood clots on the floor marking the place where Nicodem fell, his throat cut by a saw-edged German saber.

Four Houses Had Been Burned.

"It was said by some inhabitants that the murdered man showed a pair of binoculars, but a more probable explanation was that English outposts had concealed themselves in the house, from which they poured a rain of fire upon the first German invaders. The inference that the shooting was done by Belgian civilians may have inflamed the Germans to reprisals. In that neighborhood four houses had been burned and one was still ablaze as I passed on Wednesday, Aug. 26.

"This town of Merbes le Chateau, which had been the scene of an unimportant skirmish between the Germans and English on the previous Sunday, was riddled with rifle shots. The small number of windows intact showed that the Germans had made a deliberate assault upon the residents of the town.

"But the inhabitants themselves admitted that all of the shooting had been done by a comparatively small number of Germans, and that the firing had not been begun until English soldiers, who had concealed themselves in the houses, had fired first upon the Germans.

"I have emphasized the one fatality of the noncombatant, because the news of it traveled up and down the Sambre, and across to Hantes-Wiberle and Soire-Sur-Sambre, multiplying as it went until it seemed an unanswerable reproach to the whole German empire. With this one possible exception, I did not encounter in Nivelles, in Binche, Buissiere or Soire-Sur-Sambre or any of the other towns I visited, a single incident of mistreatment of any sort by German officers or soldiers.

Buissiere Virtually Destroyed.

"Buissiere—particularly the lower part of the city—had been virtually destroyed by a cross-fire from French and German artillery. Tops of breweries had been hurled bodily to the ground and walls had either disappeared or become grotesquely dislodged. The whole city lay in smoking ruins, with only its drawbridge across the Sambre and a few marble stations and boathouses towering above the debris. But here, two days after the battle, women and children were moving comfortably about the town and not a single complaint was uttered against German conduct.

"The town of Soire-Sur-Sambre is a small village about five miles south of Buissiere, and is important, not as a battlefield, but as a center about which the French and German conflict waged steadily for two days, Aug. 22-24, the French line, after making sporadic stands, being forced back steadily over the French border until the movement became a flight.

"Into this town 130 French killed and more than a hundred wounded were brought in a single day. Auguste Blariaux, Burgomaster, said that he know of no cases of German cruelties, save distant rumors, which he had learned to discredit. It ought to be said to the credit of the Belgians that they have not allowed their bitterness toward the Germans to carry them into unfair recrimination.

"Robert J. Thompson, American Consul at Aachen, visited Liege during and after the capture of the forts. It is the opinion of Mr. Thompson that no outrage was committed by Germans during the several days' fighting there.

"There are, of course, reported outrages beyond investigation either on account of the vagueness or because it is impossible to weigh the provocation. It is known, for instance, that 112 natives were killed in Renouchamp, not far from Ardennes; German soldiers say that they were killed because they fired upon them from the roofs and windows of the houses.

"The history of the absolute destruction of the historic city of Louvain with its cathedral and its university, is by this time well known. The German version of this is that the inhabitants under the direction of the Burgomaster, established themselves in the church, where they also installed a machine gun. They proceeded to greet the Germans with a deadly fire.

Generally Credited Explanation.

"The Belgians say, on the other hand, that part of the German army, mistaking one of their own retiring divisions for the enemy, opened fire upon them, whereupon, deluded into thinking an assault by Belgian civilians, the Germans razed the whole city.

"I have not been able to acquire any direct evidence in regard to these last two instances, but the explanation generally credited by disinterested persons, is that the Belgians who had laid down their arms, according to the Burgomaster's proclamation on the entrance of the enemy, took them up again, when it looked as if the Germans were retreating from the town, and opened fire from their windows upon a retiring German train.

"The most authoritative German denial of German offenses comes from Major-General Thaddeus von Jarotzsky, Military Governor of Brussels, who informed me that in numerous cases, he had been received with a pretense of friendliness by Belgian civilians, who later fired upon the German soldiers from windows and from between the roof tiles. This was done, he said, after a declaration of surrender by the Burgomaster and a proclamation warning the citizens against any show of resistance.

"In such violations of the rules of war, the General said, he punished the offender by burning the houses from which the shots were fired.

"This explanation of the burning of villages is given with such perfect unanimity by all German officers and men that to go into separate instances is unnecessary. It seems to serve as a sort of blanket extenuation for all German severities. I can only say that in every case of reported outrage or reprisal which was susceptible of investigation I have found either that the outrage was a figment of the Belgian mind or that it was more than half excused by circumstances.

Actual Knowledge of Sniping.

"I have actual knowledge of the sniping by Belgian citizens at Manage and other towns and even the Belgians admit that in a few instances they have been guilty of this. This furnishes a provocation for the only German severity which I have had an opportunity to observe—the burning of houses.

"A Belgian fugitive from a suburb of Charleroi brought to Nivelle a story of the Germans marching the priest and several of the inhabitants before the army as a protection against fire from the houses. This has received ample verification, but hardly comes under the heading of atrocities.

"The prevalence of the Belgian practice of sniping from the houses was perhaps indicated by the warning of the German officer who acted as guard for five American correspondents, including myself, who were being taken as prisoners from Beaumont to Aachen in an army train. We were advised to lie down on the floor of the car, as the Belgian snipers would shoot us from the houses. But there was no firing.

"This, of course, is not a brief for the German army; it is an account of German conduct as it appeared to an impartial observer who had the rather extraordinary opportunity of traveling for days with the German columns over a distance of more than 100 miles, through a dozen important cities and towns.

Waste the Inevitable Footprint.

"Sometimes I was near enough to the front to see the white artillery smoke spurt into clouds along the horizon and hear the double detonations, which came from artillery at short range. At other times I trailed behind through the desolate waste which a vigorous army leaves behind it. But the waste was the inevitable footprint of war, marking the most utter dreariness, misery and despair, but not with a hint of savagery, of wanton butchery or of excess.

"On the contrary, I witnessed numerous cases of the most careful courtesy on the part of the German soldiers. In Brussels they not only paid their cafe bills, but tipped generously. Along the road when a German officer or soldier entered a Belgian house for food or shelter, it was not with a demand, but a request. In spite of the confusion and errors which arose from a strange tongue, there was almost no friction of any sort.

"The German soldiers were punctiliously considerate and polite to women and children, apologizing for the discomfort they were causing. Upon leaving a house where they have been given shelter, I have seen them shake hands with the concierge, peasant woman or, in some cases, with the gentlewoman of the Belgian villa, as pleasantly as if they were bidding adieu to the hostess at a week-end house party.

"So many instances of this sort are at hand that a recital of them would be tedious. I have seen German soldiers helping Belgian women with their housework and playing with the children.

"Naturally inclined to be gruff with their soldiers, the German officers always turned to the French prisoners with a pleasant word and treated them with every consideration. Not a single exception to this civility towards prisoners has come to my attention.

Went Hungry to Feed Prisoners.

"A French lieutenant and two English officers traveled with us in the prison train from Beaumont to Aachen, a halting journey which took over 36 hours. The train was crowded with German wounded and French and English prisoners, and there was nothing to eat or drink except a few fragments of rye bread, hard as a stone, and a little liquid compound of chicory, which in Belgium masquerades under the name of coffee. Since there was not enough of this to go round, German officers went without food so that the prisoners might be fed.

"Between Chateau de Casteau and Lobbes, a particularly desolated neighborhood, whence inhabitants had fled one and all, the Germans found a hungry canary in an abandoned farmhouse. Without having experienced the genuine, almost womanly tenderness of the German soldiers, one would have called their feeding of the canary an affectation—or, at best, a passing whim—but it was typical.

"In a little cafe in Beaumont, concierge and madame had fled before the approach of the soldiers and abandoned their business. Two officers found them in hiding, brought them back, and in a day they had taken in more money than in any previous week in their career.

"These incidents could be indefinitely prolonged but they would only offer additional support to a point that I think I have already established—the universal kindliness of German soldiers as I have observed them.

"I have seen perhaps half a dozen cases of drunkenness in observing nearly a million soldiers, and these few were only good naturedly maudling.

"In Beaumont, while I was detained for 24 hours in the small cafe previously mentioned, with an armed guard at the door, although specifically told that I was not an ordinary prisoner, a swaggering petty officer of some sort lunged toward me and showed me the sharp convincing edge of his sword, insisting that I run my hand across it. Meanwhile he muttered to other soldiers in the room that other correspondents were English spies. But this was the only disagreeable experience of the sort.

"Behavior Is Remarkable."

"German discipline and German training seem to have developed in the German soldier an exemplary behavior, which is nothing less than remarkable. Before I fell asleep on the floor of the Beaumont Cafe, with two German guns slanting almost over me, I heard the petty officer, who was in charge of us, giving instructions to the guards, which included the statement that any one of us, who stirred outside the door, should be shot.

"Then he counseled them, almost in a fatherly way, to drink only moderately, stating quite firmly that if they became drunk he would recommend a sentence of 15 years in the penitentiary.

"If the conduct of the German soldier errs at all it is on the side of a too complete subordination. It is impossible for anyone who has seen much of the German system to believe in the tales of deliberate depredations and unsoldierly conduct."

East Indian Lancers, Said to Have Reached France

HANOTAUX, PEACE ADVOCATE, URGES WAR TO THE END

Says Disarmament Can Come Only After Unrelenting, Decisive Conflict.

(Copyright, 1914, by Press Pub. Co.)

BORDEAUX, Sept. 17.—"We must not flatter ourselves," said Gabriel Hanotaux, member of the French Academy and famous peace advocate, "with the opinion that this will not be a long war. We don't know. Common sense would suggest that it would be better for Germany, now that her huge mistake has been demonstrated, to negotiate peace rather than to continue the monstrous human butchery for which she and her ally alone are responsible. But how can you expect a power that deliberately arrayed the civilized world against herself to listen to the voice of common sense, even after she has sacrificed several hundred thousand of her sturdiest subjects.

"Obstinacy is characteristic of foolish brutality, and commensurate with its strength, Germany is too conscious of her immense material force to make a timely surrender. The concessions she may make ultimately, therefore, will be all the greater. The agreement of the Triple Entente to stand together, and not to accept a compromise of any kind was inspired by the wisest insight into the nature of the common foe of mankind.

"The war must continue to the bitter end, for Germany could not otherwise be adequately punished."

Thus spoke M. Hanotaux, interrupting the labor whereon he has just entered as historiographer of the war, to grant an interview.

"We are making war," he went on, "for the sake of peace. Unless this war were unrelentingly prosecuted by the nations that Germany and Austria have wantonly assaulted, general disarmament, for which we have been striving so long as an indispensable condition of a happy future, never could be enforced.

"Germany may be completely ruined before she is brought to her reason, and the rest of mankind may pay an incalculable price of blood and material wealth. Yet it will be worth it, in view of the beneficent consequences."

Liner Ryndam, From New York, Seized by a British Warship

QUEENSTOWN, Sept. 17.—The Holland-America line steamship Ryndam, which sailed from New York, Sept. 8 for Rotterdam, was seized by a British warship and brought into Cork harbor today.

Many "Missing" Are Dead, Richard Harding Davis Says

carcasses of horses lined the road, sickening the air. Some few of these had been killed by shell fire, others worn out and emaciated and bearing the brand of the German army, had been mercifully destroyed, but the greatest number of them were the farm horses of peasants still wearing their head-stalls or the harness of the plow. That they might not aid the enemy as remounts, the Germans, in their retreat, had shot them.

I saw four and five together in the yards of stables, a bullet hole of an automatic in the head of each. Others lay beside the market cart, others by the canal, where they had sought water.

Trucks Are Abandoned.

Less pitiful, but still evidencing the wastefulness of war, were the motor trucks and automobiles that in the flight had been abandoned. They had broken down, or the petrol, of which the German army is said to be locally in need, had been exhausted, and sooner than that they should fall into the hands of the enemy the Germans had smashed the motors or beneath them had lighted fires. Others they had shoved over embankments.

In the forest of Villers-Cotterets I counted in one place fifteen 5-ton motor trucks completely destroyed. A heap of empty gasoline barrels told the story. For 20 miles these automobiles were scattered along the road. They were so many one stopped counting them.

Added to their loss were two shattered German airships. One I saw 15 miles outside the Meaux and one at Bouneville. As they fell they had buried their motors deep in the soft earth and their wings were twisted wrecks of silk and steel.

Farms Are Devastated.

All the fields through which the army passed had become waste land. Shells replowed them. Horses and men had slept in them. The haystacks, gathered by the sweat of the brow and patiently set in trim rows, were trampled in the mud and scattered to the winds.

All the smaller villages through which I passed were empty of people, and since the day before, when the Germans left them, none of the inhabitants had returned. The villages were just as the Germans had left them. The streets were piled with grain on which the soldiers had slept. On the sidewalks in front of the better class of houses, tables around which the officers had eaten still remained, the bottles half empty, the food half eaten.

In a chateau beyond Neurchelles the doors and windows were open, and lace curtains were blowing in the breeze. From the garden you could see paintings on the walls, books on tables. Outside on the lawn, surrounded by old and charming gardens, apparently the General and his staff had prepared to dine.

The table was set for a dozen, and on it were candles in silver sticks, many bottles of red and white wine, champagne, liquors and coffee cups of the finest china. From their banquet, some alarm had summoned the officers. The place was as they had left it, the coffee untasted, the candles burned to the candle sticks and red stains on cloth where brandy had spilled. In the bright sunlight and surrounded by flowers the deserted table and the silent, stately chateau seemed like the sleeping palace of fairy tale.

Though the humor of troops retreating is an ugly one, I saw no outrages such as I saw in Belgium except in the villages of Neufchelles and Varreddes. There was no sign of looting or wanton destruction. In those two villages the interior of every house and shop was completely wrecked. In the other villages the destruction was such as is permitted by the usages of war, such as the blowing up of bridges, the burning of the railroad station and the cutting of the telegraph wires.

Not until Bouneville, 20 miles beyond Meaux, did I catch up with the allies. There I met some English Tommies who were trying to find their column. They had no knowledge of the French language, or where they were or where their regiment was, but were quite confident of finding it and were as cheerful as at maneuvers.

Turcos After Germans.

Outside of Chaudun, the road was blocked with the Algerians in light blue Zouave uniforms, and native Turcos from Morocco, in khaki. They shivered in the autumn sunshine, and were wrapped in burnooses of black and white. They were making a turning movement to attack the German right and were being hurried forward. They had just driven the German rear guard out of Chaudun, and said the fighting was still going on at Soissons. But the only signs I saw of it were two Turcos who had followed the Germans too far. They lay sprawling in the road, and had so lately fallen that their rifles still lay under them.

Three miles further I came upon the advance line of the French army, and for the remainder of the day I watched a most remarkable artillery duel, which ended with Soissons in the hands of the allies. Soissons is a pretty town of 4000 inhabitants. It is chiefly known for its haricots verts (French beans), and since the Romans held it under Caesar, it has been continuously besieged. Until today the Germans had held it for two weeks. In 1870 they bombarded it for four days, and there is or was in the Place de la Republique, a monument to those citizens of Soissons, whom, after that siege, the Germans shot.

Germans Withdraw.

The town lies in the valley of the river Aisne, which is formed by two long ridges running south and north. Last night the Germans occupied the hills to the south, but when attacked offered only slight resistance and withdrew to the hills opposite. In Soissons they left a rear guard to protect their supplies, who were destroying all bridges leading into the town.

At the time I arrived, a force of Turcos had been ordered forward to clean Soissons of the Germans, and the French artillery was endeavoring to disclose their positions on the hills.

The loss of the bridges did not embarrass the black men. In rowboats they crossed to Soissons and were warmly greeted. This morning Soissons was drawing no color line.

The Turcos were followed by engineers, who endeavored to repair one bridge, and in consequence were heavily shelled with shrapnel, while, with intent to destroy the road and retard the French advance, the hills where the French had halted were being pounded by German siege guns. This was at a point nearly three miles from Chaudun between the villages of Brell and Courtelles. From this height it could see almost to Compiegne, and 30 miles in front in the direction of St. Quentin.

Shells Over Steeples.

It was a panorama of wooded hills, gray villages in yellow fields of grain, miles of poplars marking the roads, and below us the flashing waters of the Aisne and the canal, at our feet the steeples of the cathedral of Soissons and the gate to the old abbey of Thomas a-Becket.

Across these steeples the shells sang, and on both sides of the Aisne the artillery was engaged. The wind was blowing 40 knots, which prevented the use of the French aeroplanes, but it cleared the air and, helped by brilliant sunshine, it was possible to follow the smoke of the battle for 15 miles.

The wind was blowing toward our right, where the English were, and though we could see the flash of their guns and the rings of smoke as their shrapnel burst, the report of the guns did not reach us. It gave the curious impression of a bombardment conducted in utter silence.

From our left the wind carried the sounds clearly. The jar and roar of the cannon was insistent, and on both sides of the valley the hilltops were wrapped with white clouds. Back of us in the wheat fields, shells were setting fire to the giant haystacks and piles of grain, which in the clear sunshine burned a blatant red.

Smoke Hides Village.

At times shells would strike in the villages of Breuil and Vauxbain, and houses would burst into flames, the gale fanning the fire to great height and hiding the village in smoke. Some 300 yards ahead of us shells of German siege guns were trying to destroy the road, which the poplars clearly betrayed. But their practice was at fault, and the shells fell only on either side.

When they struck, they burst with a roar, casting up black fumes and digging a grave 20 yards in circumference. But the French soldiers disregarded them entirely.

In the trenches, which the Germans had made and abandoned, they hid from the wind and slept peacefully. Others slept in the lee of the haystacks, their red breeches and blue coats making wonderful splashes of color against the yellow grain. For seven days they have been fighting without pause, and battles bore them.

Late in the afternoon, all along the 15 miles of battle, firing ceased. For the Germans were falling back upon Laon, and once more Soissons, freed of them as, 1500 years ago, she had freed herself of the Romans, held out her arms to the allies.

AUSTRIA WILLING TO MEDIATE WHEN KAISER STEPPED IN

Servian Negotiations Were Proceeding When Ultimatum Was Sent to Russia.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

(Copyright, 1914, by Press Pub. Co.)

LONDON, Sept. 17.—A new White Paper published today makes the charges that Austria was prepared to settle the dispute with Servia by mediation when Germany declared war on Russia and then on France.

In a long dispatch dated Sept. 1, to Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Secretary, Sir Maurice de Bunsen, British Ambassador at Vienna, states that on Aug. 1 Russia and Austria had almost arrived at an agreement, Austria consenting to submit to mediation a point in the note to Servia which seemed incompatible with the maintenance of Servian independence.

"Russia accepted the proposition, on the condition that Austria would refrain from an actual invasion of Servia. Count Schebeko, the Russian Ambassador," Sir Maurice declares, "was working hard for peace to the end.

Conciliatory Language Used.

He was holding out most conciliatory language to Count Berchtold, the Austrian Foreign Minister, and he was informed that the latter, as well as Count Forgach, had responded in the same spirit.

"Certainly, it was too much for Russia to expect that Austria would hold back her armies, but this matter could probably have been settled by negotiation, and Count Schebeko repeatedly said he was prepared to accept any reasonable compromise. Austria, in fact, had freely yielded, and that she herself had at this point good hopes of a peaceful issue is shown by a communication made to you (Sir Edward Grey) on the first day of August by Count Mensdorff Austrian Ambassador at London, that Austria had neither banged the door on compromise nor cut off the conversations.

"Unfortunately, these conversations at St. Petersburg and Vienna were cut short by the transfer of the dispute to the more dangerous ground of a direct conflict between Germany and Russia.

"Germany intervened on July 31 by means of her double ultimatums to St. Petersburg and Paris. These ultimatums were of a kind to which only one answer is possible and Germany declared war on Russia on Aug. 1 and on France on Aug. 2.

Dealing with the beginning of the trouble, the Austrian note to Servia, Sir Maurice states that the French Ambassador was under the impression that the note would contain nothing with which a self-respecting state need hesitate to comply. So little was the Russian Ambassador made aware of what was preparing that he actually left Vienna on leave for a fornight about July 30. The Italian Ambassador was also left completely in the dark.

"As for myself," continues Sir Maurice, "no indication was given me by Count Berchtold of the impending storm and it was from a private source that I received a forecast of what was about to happen.

"On July 24 the note was published in newspapers by common consent. It was at once styled an ultimatum. Its integral acceptance by Servia was neither expected nor desired, and when on the following afternoon it was first rumored in Vienna that it had been unconditionally accepted there was a moment of keen disappointment. The mistake was quickly corrected and as soon as it was known later in the evening that the Servian reply had been rejected and that Baron Giesel had broken off relations at Belgrade, Vienna burst into a frenzy of delight, vast crowds parading the streets and singing patriotic songs till the small hours of morning.

"Now the floodgates opened and the entire people and press clamored impatiently for the immediate punishment of the hated Servian race. The country certainly believed that it had before it only the alternative of subduing Servia or of submitting sooner or later to mutilation at her hands. But a peaceful solution could have been attempted. A few seemed to reflect that forcible intervention of a great Power in the Balkans must call other great Powers into the field.

Germany Didn't Fear Russia.

"The conviction had been expressed to me by the German Ambassador on July 24 that Russia would stand aside. This feeling influenced, no doubt, the course of events, and it is deplorable that no effort should have been made by means of diplomatic negotiations, with acquiescence of Russia and Europe as a whole, for some peaceful compromise of the Servian question by which Austrian fears of Servian aggression and intrigue might have been revealed for the future.

"Instead of adopting this course, the Austro-Hungarian Government resolved upon war. The inevitable consequence ensued. Russia replied to a partial Austrian mobilization and the declaration of war against Servia by a partial Russian mobilization against Austria. Austria met this move by completing her own mobilization and Russia again responded."

Sir Maurice saw Count Berchtold on July 28 and urged that the scheme of mediation mentioned in Sir Edward Grey's speech in the House of Commons should be accepted as offering an honorable and peaceful settlement.

Count Berchtold said matters had gone too far. Austria was that day declaring war on Servia. His excellency, said he, too, was keeping the European aspect of the question in sight. He thought, however, that Russia would have no right to intervene after receiving his assurance that Austria sought no territorial aggrandisement.

"Tchirsky abstained from inviting my co-operation," Sir Maurice continued, "or that of the French and Russian Ambassador in carrying out his instruction in the interest of peace, and I have no means of knowing what response he was receiving from Austro-Hungary.

Consented to Further Parleys.

"I was kept fully informed by M. Schebeko, the Russian Ambassador, of his own direct negotiations with Count Berchtold. Count Schebeko endeavored on July 28 to persuade the Austro-Hungary Government to furnish Count Szapary with full powers to continue at St. Petersburg the hopeful conversations which had there been taking place between the latter and Count Saxonoff.

"Count Berchtold refused at the time, but two days later, July 30, though in the meantime Russia had partially mobilized against Austria, he received Count Schebeko again in a perfectly friendly manner and gave his consent to the continuance of conversations at St. Petersburg. From then onward the tension between Russia and Germany was much greater than between Russia and Austria and the rupture finally came when Germany declared war."

DIARY TELLS OF VARYING TIDE OF BATTLE OF MARNE

Calm and Joy Prevailed Sept. 13, Citizen of Crepy-en-Valois Writes.

PARIS, Sept. 17.—The following extracts from the diary of a citizen of Crepy-En-Valois, published today in the Petit Parisien, gives a graphic resume of the varying fortunes of the battle of the Marne:

"Aug. 30: Passage of English troops, 10,000 men.

"Aug. 31: Arrival of French wounded.

"Sept. 1: Cannonading patrol of uhlans arrives and Taube (German type of aeroplane) throws a bomb. Officials flee with part of population of 5200. Only 1400 remain.

"Sept. 2: German troops passed. General makes formidable requisitions on town and fixes a fine of 100,000 francs ($20,000) per day for delay. First vicar captured and 10 other citizens taken as hostages. Systematic pillage commenced yesterday continues.

"Sept. 3: Continued cortege of troops. Some set fire to houses for amusement.

"Sept. 4: All Germans have passed. Heavy firing toward Nanteuil.

"Sept. 5: Germans come back; pillage resumed.

"Sept. 6: First wounded Frenchmen arrived. Indecision apparent among German troops; don't know whether go south or north.

"Sept. 7: Cannonading resumed furiously. German aeroplane threw bomb on a factory transformed into a hospital. A Taube brought down at the station. The French arrive and capture German stores.

"Sept. 8: A Taube aeroplane catches fire and falls toward Feinies. Cannonading continues without respite.

"Sept. 9: French cavalry retreats and Germans come back to town at noon and pillage is resumed.

"Sept. 10: Germans blow up the Senlis Bridge and leave toward Compiegne. The French come back.

"Sept. 11: A train of French engineers arrives.

"Sept. 12: There is a continual passage of English and French troops.

U. S. DOES NOT ACQUIESCE IN TURKEY'S ACTION

Furthermore, the Ottoman Government Is Told That Its Abrogation of Treaties Cannot Have Any Effect Upon Present Rights of Americans.

REASONS RESERVED FOR LATER DATE

Washington Officials Believe the Protest Will Cause Sultan to Use Extreme Care in Action Toward American Citizens.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—The Washington Government today awaited the reply of the Turkish Government to its protest against the abrogation of the capitulations by the Porte. Ambassador Morgenthau at Constantinople had been instructed by Secretary Bryan to inform the Turkish Government that the United States does not acquiesce in the reported intention of Turkey to deprive foreigners of their extra-territorial rights.

"Furthermore," says Secretary Bryan, in a paraphrase statement of the cablegram to Mr. Morganthau, "the Government does not recognize that the Ottoman Government has a right to abrogate the capitulations, or that it's action to this end, being unilateral, can have any effect upon the rights and privileges enjoyed under the capitulatory conventions."

The Ambassador was further instructed to advise the Porte that the Washington Government would reserve for the present discussion of the grounds upon which it based its refusal to acquiesce in the action of Turkey and also reserved the right to make further representations in the matter later.

Will Postpone Discussion.

A desire not to become entangled in the intricate web of European diplomacy, on which the possibility of war between Turkey and other European nations depends, is believed to be the reason for the delay in taking up the matter.

Fearing that it might be misunderstood, the Washington Government will postpone further discussion of the subject until the war is ended. It is believed that meantime, the protest will cause Turkey to use extreme care in the treatment accorded Americans in the event the Porte carries out its announced intention to do away with the extra territorial rights of foreigners beginning Oct. 1.

The flat declaration that the United States did not recognize the right of Turkey to abrogate its capitulations is one which other European Powers also have made in their protests. The peculiar conditions under which foreigners have been given special privileges in Turkey for more than 400 years, and the numerous treaties under which the usage has been established, will be the basis for the American Government's contention that in this question certain rights inhere to foreign governments until such conditions shall arise in the Ottoman empire which will be a complete guarantee for the protection of foreigners and their interests.

Not the First Objection.

The objection of the United States to Turkey's action is not the first in history. The American Government as well as the Powers have successfully thwarted previous attempts by Turkey to free herself from what she regarded as a restriction of her sovereignty.

Turkey has contended through her Ambassador here that the United States enjoyed these privileges only through a most favored nation clause and that when the capitulations with the other Powers were abrogated the United States was merely deprived of an incidental privilege.

In this view the Washington Government does not concur, for it claims the treaty of 1830 between the United States and Turkey specifically granted these rights to the United States.

"It's the Same Old Story--Your Store Is So Far Ahead With Its New Fashions"

The above remark was particularly gratifying because it was a spontaneous expression of enthusiasm straight from the mouth of a newspaper woman, who had just finished making an accurate study of the new Fall modes as presented by the various St. Louis stores.

How delighted we would be if every woman would make as thorough study of the style situation in this city.

There could be but one logical finding, and in substance, it would be:

—That this store is again supreme in the matter of fashions.

—That here the largest stocks are certainly shown.

—That each one of the individual stocks of Ready-to-wear is all-comprehensive in the possibility for selection of styles, etc.

"It's the Same Old Story--Your Store Is So Far Ahead With Its New Fashions"

And there are good reasons why this store should lead in the matter of fashions.

One of these is, that here a closer and a more scientific study of the fashion world is indulged in.

This Store Was the Only St. Louis Establishment to Have a Representative of its Ready-to-Wear Section Abroad This Year.

She was only a woman, but stayed and stayed in Paris, notwithstanding the increasing danger that every hour brought, in the hope and with the determination of bringing home some original models.

Two hours after her arrival in New York, the best tailors and dressmakers in that city were copying from original garments and from sketches which she brought direct from the world's center of fashion.

BELGIANS DETAIL ALLEGED CRUELTY OF GERMAN TROOPS

Report Presented to President Wilson Speaks of "Massacre of Aerschot."

PROVOCATION IS DENIED

Peasants Declared to Have Been Bound, Put Into Ditch and Killed.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—A resume of the findings of the Belgian Commission of Inquiry, appointed by the King of the Belgians to investigate the alleged atrocities committed by German troops, was made public today after the report had been presented to President Wilson.

The findings were grouped under the headings of "The Atrocities at Linsmeau and Orsmael." "The Massacre of Aerschot" and "The Destruction of Louvain." The summary follows:

"German cavalry, occupying the village of Linsmeau, were attacked by some Belgian tro ops and two gendarmes. A German officer was killed by the Belgian soldiers during the fight and subsequently buried at the request of the Belgian officer in command. None of the civilians had taken part in the fight; nevertheless, the village was invaded at dusk, on Aug. 10, by a strong force of German cavalry, artillery and machine guns.

"Peasants Killed in Ditch."

"In spite of the formal assurances given by the Burgomaster that none of the civilians had taken part in the fight, two farms and six outlying houses were destroyed by gun fire and reduced to ashes. All the male population was then compelled to come forward and hand over whatever arms they possessed. No recently discharged firearms were found. Nevertheless, the pursuers divided these peasants into three groups. Those in one group were bound and 11 of them placed in a ditch where they afterwards were found dead, their skulls fractured by the butts of rifles.

"During the night of Aug. 10 German cavalry entered Velm in great numbers. The inhabitants were asleep. Without provocation the Germans fired on Mr. Deglimme's house and broke into it. They destroyed furniture and looted valuables. They burned his barn, hay, corn stacks, implements, cattle and his farm yard. They carried off Mme. Deglimme half naked to a place two miles away. She was then released, and as she fled, was fired upon, without being hit, however. Her husband was carried to a point in another direction and fired upon. He is dying. The same troops sacked and burned the house of a railway watchman.

"Farmer Jef Dkerckx of Neerhespen is an eyewitness to the following atrocities, committed by German cavalry at Orsmael and Neerhespen, Aug. 10, 11 and 12: An old man had his arm cut in three longitudinal slices; he was then hanged head downward and burned alive. Young girls and little children were outraged at Orsmael and mutilations too horrible to describe were inflicted on other inhabitants. Prisoners were hanged, while others were tied to telegraph posts and shot.

"Wounded Officer Slain."

"After an engagement at Haelen, Commandant Van Damme was so severely wounded that he was lying prone on his back. He was murdered by German infantry firing their revolvers into his mouth.

"Numerous wounded and unarmed soldiers were ill treated or killed by German troops, and in different places doctors and nurses and ambulances were fired upon.

"At times the Germans went into the battle with a Belgian flag.

"While digging trenches and with the white flag hoisted, Belgian soldiers were set upon by Germans and shot.

"Another time, near a fort at Loncin, a group of German infantry hoisted the white flag, and when the Belgian soldiers approached them to take them prisoners they were fired upon at close range.

"Aerschot, a town of 8000 inhabitants, was invested by the Germans on the morning of Aug. 19. No Belgian troops remained behind. No sooner had the Germans entered the city when they began by shooting several inoffensive civilians.

"In the evening, claiming that a superior German officer had been shot by the son of the Burgomaster, or, according to another version of their story, that a conspiracy had been hatched against the German commandant by the Burgomaster and his family, the Germans took hold of every man in the city, carrying them, fifty at a time, within some distance of the town.

"Massacre at Aerschot."

"There they grouped them in lines of four men, made them run ahead of them and fired upon them, killing them afterward with their bayonets. More than 40 men were found thus massacred.

"They pillaged the whole town, taking from private residences all they could lay their hands on. The following morning they took one man out of every three, whom they had arrested the previous evening, and, leading them outside the city, shot them. Among these were the Burgomaster of the town, Mr. Thielmans, his 15-year-old son and his brother.

Then they compelled the remaining villagers to dig holes to bury their victims.

"For three whole days they continued to pillage and set fire to everything in their way.

"About 150 inhabitants of Aerschot are supposed to have thus perished.

"The largest part of the city is destroyed. Five times the Germans tried to set fire to the big church, having sacked the interior. The town records were destroyed or carried off.

"It must be borne in mind that the civil population of Aerschot had been repeatedly warned by their Burgomaster not to offer any resistance or commit any hostile act toward the invaders. They (the Germans) shot up the fleeing citizens, set fire to private houses and sacked them. They wanted to make the victimized citizens declare that they themselves had set fire to their homes. Everywhere along the road of the German march the same horrors were visible. The witness mentions the names of 18 persons, who to his knowledge, were massacred at Aerschot.

Belgian Report on Alleged Cruelty of German Troops

Destruction of Louvain.

"The German army penetrated into Louvain, after having set fire to the surrounding towns and villages.

"From the moment of their entrance into the city they requisitioned lodging and food for their troops. Then entered every private bank and looted their reserve. They entered private residences and sacked and pillaged them, and indulged in orgies of all kinds.

"They took hostages; all the prominent men of the city were detained. Women and children were outraged and ill treated by the soldiers.

"Previous to the German invasion the whole city had been warned repeatedly not to offer any resistance to the German troops or to oppose hostile acts. More than that, all arms belonging to civilians, down to fencing foils, had been ordered deposited several days previously, in the city hall, and there was not a weapon found on any civilian.

"On Aug. 25 an engagement took place in the neighborhood of Louvain between German and Belgian troops. The Germans, repulsed and pursued by the Belgain troops, retreated toward Louvain in full panic.

"Many witnesses testify that at that moment the German garrison in Louvain was erroneously informed that Belgians were entering the city. Immediately the German garrison, stationed at Louvain, withdrew toward the station, where they clashed with their own troops, which were being pursued by the Belgians. Everything seems to point to the fact that a contact took place.

"From that moment, pretending the Belgian civilians had fired upon the German troops, the Germans began bombarding the city and kept up their bombardment until 10 o'clock that night. At the place where the affray started, not a single body was found of a civilian, proving that the population had not participated in the shooting.

Germans Bombarded Louvain.

"The houses which had not taken fire were set ablaze by rockets with which the German soldiers were supplied. The largest part of the City of Louvain, especially the 'Haute Ville,' that is to say, the part comprising the modern houses, the Cathedral of St. Peter, the university halls, with the old and famous library of the university, its manuscripts, collections and scientific institutions, the theater and many more buildings were at that time consumed by flames.

"The fire continued for several days. Numerous bodies of civilians covered the streets and squares. An eyewitness testified that in one place he counted more than fifty charred bodies of people, many persons who had taken refuge in their cellars trying to escape perishing in the furnace of the blazing city.

"The fire started a little above the American College; the city is entirely destroyed with the exception of the city hall and the station. The fire continued for days, and far from trying to stop it, the Germans seemed on the contrary trying to feed it by throwing straw into it. The cathedral and the theater were consumed by the flame and fell into ruins. The library of the university also is destroyed. The town resembles an old city in ruins, in the midst of which drunken soldiers were carousing, carrying around bottles of wines and liquor; the officers themselves were installed in armchairs, drinking like their own men.

"The procedure of the Germans seems to be the same everywhere—first of all they requisition food and drink, of which they partake to the point of drunkenness. Then they begin to shoot wildly from the windows of abandoned houses, declaring that the inhabitants have fired upon them. Then the firing and shooting scenes begin, and murder, especially pillage and acts of cold cruelty, are witnessed.

"Men Locked in Churches."

"Neither age nor sex is respected. Even where they claim to know the perpetrator of the deed, they allege, the Germans do not content themselves with executing summarily the culprit—they wreak their vengeance on the whole town. After a first massacre, somewhat at random, they shut the men in the churches and order the women to go back to their homes and leave the door open."

"In several instances the civilians were sent to Germany, to be compelled there, it seems, to labor in the field as was done in the days of slavery.

"Since collecting the above testimony the following cables regarding the same subjects were received from the Minister of Foreign Affairs of Belgium:

"Sept. 8.—You have received the reports of the commission of Aug. 25 and 31. Since then a great many localities, situated in the Vilvorde-Malines-Louvain triangle, an extremely fertile and densely populated district, have been partly pillaged and totally destroyed by fire. Their inhabitants have fled while a number of them, among others women and children, were arrested and shot without trial; and without apparent reason except to inspire the population with terror.

"This was done in Sempst, Weerds, Elewyt, Hofstade, Wespelaer, Wilsele, Bueken, Eppeghen, Houtehm, Tremeloo, Tisteit, Gelrode and Herent. At Wavre, where the population was unable to pay a tribute of three millions, 53 houses were set on fire. The largest part of Cortenburg is burnt. To excuse these attacks the Germans allege that an army of civilians resisted them.

"'According to trustworthy testimony no provocations can be proved at Vis, Aerschot, Louvain, Wavre and in other localities situated in the Malines-Louvain, Vilvorde district, where fire was set and massacres committed several days after the German occupation.

"'September 15—Inform the Belgian Commission that the Belgian Committee on Inquiry continues to report ruins and devastations and pillage, systematically organized by German troops in the towns invested by them.

"'The city of Termonde was destroyed without any hostile participation on the part of the civilian population. Out of 1400 houses, only 295 remain standing—others were destroyed by fire and razed to the ground when the Germans entered the city.

"'Several citizens were imprisoned and bayonetted in the presence of their relatives.

Nine Melte Citizens Slain.

"'In Melte nine civilians were killed and 45 properties destroyed without any reason. The reoccupation of Aerschot by the Belgian army reveals disastrous deeds. Dwellings which are not destroyed by fire were completely sacked and pillaged on Sept. 6, before the return of Belgian troops. Four hundred civilians, among 30 clergymen, were locked since Aug. 30 in the church, without food, then carried off and sent to destinations unknown. Localities in the neighborhood are completely destroyed. Everywhere along the road are corpses. Women and young girls were outraged. Systematic pillage.'".

Redmond Calls on Irishmen to Keep Faith With Empire

LONDON, Sept. 17.—"The democracy of Great Britain has kept faith with Ireland, and it is now the duty of honor for Ireland to keep faith," said John Redmond, the Irish leader, in a manifesto issued tonight, in which he calls on Irishmen to bear their share in the war.

"The Irish people," Mr. Redmond continued, "know and appreciate the fact fully that at last, after centuries of misunderstanding, the democracy of Great Britain has finally and irrevocably decided to trust them and give them back their national liberties.

"By overwhelming British majorities a charter of liberty for Ireland has three times been passed by the House of Commons, and in a few hours will be the law of the land. A new era has opened in the history of the two nations.

"During the long discussion on the Irish problem in Parliament and on the platform, we promised the British people that a concession of liberty would have the same effect in Ireland as in every other part of the empire, notably, in recent years, in South Africa; that dissatisfaction would give way to friendship and good will, and that Ireland would become a strength instead of a weakness to the empire.

"We have a right to claim that Irish recruits for an expeditionary force should be kept together as a unit and officered, as far as possible, by Irishmen—to form, in fact, an Irish brigade, so that Ireland may gain national credit for their deeds and feel like the other communities of the empire, that she, too, has contributed an army bearing her name in this historic struggle."

Explosive Bullets Found in Austrian Camps, Red Cross Hear

PETROGRAD, Sept. 17.—The general headquarters of the Red Cross announces it has been informed by its representative with the First Russian Regiment that when Austrian fortifications have been captured quantities of explosive bullets packed in special parcels and labeled have been found. It is also charged that explosive missiles have been used by the Austrians.

C. P. R. R. Denies Hauling Indian Troops in Canada

STOMACH SUFFERERS—READ THIS
So many stomach sufferers have been benefited by a simple prescription of vegetable oils which cured a Chicago druggist of chronic stomach, liver and intestinal trouble of years' standing that we want you surely to try this remedy. Says No One Need Remain Thin Now

Physician's Advice for Thin, Undeveloped Men and Women.

Thousands of people suffer from excessive thinness, weak nerves and feeble stomachs who, having tried advertised flesh-makers, food-fads, physical culture stunts and rub-on creams, resign themselves to lifelong skinniness and think nothing will make them fat. Yet their case is not hopeless. A recently discovered regenerative force makes fat grow after years of thinness, and is also unequaled for repairing the waste of sickness or faulty digestion and for strengthening the nerves. This remarkable discovery is called Sargol. Six strength-giving, fat-producing elements of acknowledged merit have been combined in this peerless preparation, which is endorsed by eminent physicians and used by prominent people everywhere. It is absolutely harmless, inexpensive and efficient.

A month's systematic use of Sargol should produce flesh and strength by correcting faults of digestion and by supplying highly concentrated fats to the blood. Increased nourishment is obtained from the food eaten, and the additional fats that thin people need are provided. Judge & Dolph, Welpert Drug Co., Raboteau, Wolff-Wilson, Johnson-Enderle-Pauley Drug Co. 5 stores and other leading druggists supply Sargol and say there is a large demand for it.

While this new preparation has given splendid results as a nerve-tonic and vitalizer, it should not be used by nervous people unless they wish to gain at least ten pounds of flesh.—ADV.

BRITISH ENVOY TO THE U. S. REGRETS CARDEN INTERVIEW

OUSTED BY CARRANZA

Sir Lionel Forced From Mexico; American Diplomacy Averted Embarrassment.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, British Ambassador, called at the State Department today and formally expressed his regret for the publication of an interview attributed to Sir Lionel Carden, former British Minister to Mexico, criticising the United States for the order withdrawing troops from Vera Cruz.

The interview, the Ambassador explained, was contrary to diplomatic usage and the regulations of the British Government, and therefore unauthorized.

Ambassador's Explanation.

In the absence of Secretary Bryan, the Ambassador made his explanation to Counselor Lansing. He explained that, inasmuch as the interview was printed after Sir Lionel had sailed from New York yesterday, it was impossible to obtain a denial from him without sending the text of the interview by wireless.

A dispatch containing the text of the interview, it was stated, has been sent to the British Government. This message will await Sir Lionel when he arrives in England.

Forced Out by Carranza.

How Sir Lionel was forced by Gen. Carranza to leave Mexico City, the diplomatic intervention of the United States alone preventing the Constitutionalist chief from abruptly handing passports to him, has been revealed in high official quarters here.

Gen. Carranza always believed the English diplomat was largely responsible for Huerta's dogged resistance to diplomatic pressure, and told his friends that when the Constitutionalists reached Mexico City the Minister would be deported. When Carranza did reach Mexico City the American Government was advised that he intended to carry out this threat. The Constitutionalist chief wanted to hand to Sir Lionel his passports immediately, and order him to leave the country.

Ordered to His New Post.

Through the Brazilian Minister the United States interceded, and it was finally arranged that the diplomat should be permitted to leave without embarrassment. Sir Lionel had previously arranged to stay indefinitely in Mexico City, but, as a result of the episode, he was ordered to his new post in Brazil immediately.

The American Government, at the time, it is understood, took occasion to point out to Carranza that whatever animosity he might personally feel toward Sir Lionel, the handing of passports to the British Minister would be misunderstood as an affront to Great Britain.

"Desperate Shame," Carden Is Quoted on Evacuation.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Sir Lionel Carden, former British Minister to Mexico, and recently appointed Minister to Brazil, before sailing yesterday on the Celtic for Liverpool is quoted by the New York City News Association as having made the following statement concerning the withdrawal of American troops from Vera Cruz:

"It is a desperate shame that the United States has seen fit to abandon the decent people of Mexico when they most need help. I do not know the reason for this, but it would seem that President Wilson has been misinformed in some matters, and that, if another side of the situation has been brought to his attention, he has not seen fit to listen to anything that contradicts those who have told him that the country has been pacified.

"The people who did not get protection in Mexico City and elsewhere went to Vera Cruz for protection. What will they do now? They have no means of getting away and will be left to the mercies of the lawless element that will immediately overrun the town and country.

"Life Is Not Safe."

"When it is said that a state of absolute anarchy exists in Mexico, it is not stating the facts too strongly. There were some 4000 good policemen in the City of Mexico, but these have been supplanted by an army of 35,000 soldiers that fought the Federal Government, and among these are several thousand of wild Yaqui Indians who, two months ago, fought with bows and arrows as the only weapons they knew. Imagine these wild men turned loose in the streets of a great city with no law to govern them and with the residents at their mercy.

"Neither life, liberty nor property is safe, and, whenever an officer so desires, he may turn a family out of its home and commandeer everything. There is no redress, for there are no courts, no Congress, no laws—nothing but anarchy and military despotism, with not even a supreme chief to oversee that.

"Wild, Roaming Brigrands."

"Huerta had some sort of a government; Carranza has none whatever. The only claim he has to greatness is his physique and that is not so terrifying, either. There is not even martial law there, because there is no organization. The Zapatistas, wild, roaming bands of brigands, every few days assault the waterworks of Mexico City, which are only 35 minutes' ride from the city, and are all the time trying to get into town. They are driven away by superior forces, but again make an assault when they feel inclined. But this is only an instance."

"For months the Carranza party has held the northern tier of states; yet has it established a government? It has not; and there does not seem to have been any attempt to do so.

"There never has been an honest election down there and there never will be until the bands of brigands that infest the land be subdued. What can one expect when these bands roam and pillage wherever they wish? They have no laws, no controlling force. They murder and plunder where they will with no penalty if caught.

"If there is to be an ultimate settlement of the Mexican troubles, it must be brought about by the United States. That would take 400,000 men many years and a vast sum of money. There would be no glory in it for the United States—only the principle of the thing—and it is a question if the great republic would care to foot the bill."

COTTON MEN AND BUY-A-BALE BOARD CONFER ON BUYING

Arrange to Make Purchases From Now on Fast as Orders Come.

The Buy-a-Bale of Cotton Committee held a conference in the Business Men's League offices this morning with several cotton men to discuss means of furthering the purchase of cotton for storage until market conditions become normal.

The committee is working out the details of the plan to buy and store as much cotton as the people are willing to buy at $50 a bale. The object of the purchase of cotton is to relieve conditions in the South resulting from the European war.

The Buy-a-Bale Committee is sending letters to a great number of St. Louisans who, in the judgment of the committee, are able to buy a bale, urging them to do so.

A telegram has been received from J. O. Phillips, one of the five St. Louis salesmen who started the movement, in which he says that the price of cotton in Texas had advanced 2 cents a pound as a result of the efforts being made here.

A telegram has been received from Montgomery, Ward & Co. of Chicago, informing the committee that the firm is planning to purchase 10,000 bales from its customers in the South.

Murray Carleton, George W. Simmons and A. L. Shapleigh were named as the purchasing committee. They were instructed to buy immediately 1000 bales of cotton.

The rules adopted provide that the cotton must be purchased in St. Louis trade territory; by State and not by localities, or through dealers, firms or States. Within the discretion of the committee, where the purchaser so requests, when 100 or more bales are ordered, the purchase may be made in a particular locality.

All cotton is to be purchased direct from the producer, and in no instance from speculators.

A check for $50 was received from the Confederate Dames' Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, signed by Mrs. W. W. Henderson, treasurer, and Mrs. Robert McCulloch, president.

D. D. Walker has given instructions for the purchase of 30 bales at 10 cents a pound. An order for 10 bales had already been placed in Walker's name.

LUCILLE JORDAN TO WED F. J. STOEGERES AGAIN

Young Couple, Divorced a Year Ago, Get License, Giving Washington D. C., as Address. Trial Before Board.

Lucille Jordan got a license last night to remarry Francis J. Stoegerer, former law student, inventor and promoter, whom she divorced June 3, 1913, on the grounds that he struck her, used bad language in her presence and failed to support her. He did not contest the suit. She is the daughter of Charles D. Jordan of 3722 West Pine boulevard, vice-president of the A. J. Jordan Cutlery Co., and is 23 years old. Stoegerer is 24.

Stoegerer and his former wife got a license at the city hall after the closing hour. Both gave their address as Washington, D. C. They said the ceremony would be performed by the Rev. Father John R. Spencer at New Cathedral Parish, who performed the first ceremony when they eloped in October, 1911.

After the elopement the bride's mother locked her in a third-floor room at the Jordan residence and refused to permit her to talk with her husband. Later the bride and Stoegerer lived in boarding houses and she was disinherited. The Jordans objected to Stoegerer because he didn't have a job.

At the parish house today it was said Father Spencer was out of town and that the couple had not appeared there to be married. At the Jordan home a maid said the family was away for the day, but that Miss Jordan had lived at San Diego, Cal., a year and had not been home in that time.

WOMAN FINDS MAN DEAD IN A CHAIR ON PORCH

Newton B. Marsh, 48 years old, a trunk maker of 5700 Cote Brilliante avenue, was found dead in a chair on the front porch of Mrs. Mary Deimel's residence, 6017 Natural Bridge road, this morning. A physician who examined the body could not determine the cause of death and an autopsy will be held.

Mrs. Katherine Marsh invited her husband to attend a party she was giving for her friends yesterday afternoon, but he said he did not feel well, and decided to visit Mrs. Deimel, an old friend.

About 10 o'clock last night Marsh retired to his room. When Mrs. Deimel went to the front door about 7 o'clock this morning she found Marsh, fully clothed, dead in the chair.

IS YOUR HAIR RIGHT FOR THE NEW FALL STYLES—By Lois

You will delight in arranging your hair in the new and interesting modes of this season if you are among those who keep their hair perfectly soft and appearing naturally heavy by use of a shampoo that makes it very fluffy. Do not take chances with some makeshift or unknown soap mixtures. I have tried many in search of the best, cheapest and easiest to use and finally have decided to always use canthrox, which is made for shampooing only and is so beautifying in its effect upon the hair. I get it at any good drug store and one package lasts so long that it is the most economical shampoo I can get and my first trial convinced me that it was the most easily used. In clearing the scalp and hair of all dandruff, dirt and excess oil, its delicately perfumed lather gently permeates to the hair roots and not only takes loose dirt, but dissolves all the oil accumulations so they are rinsed out, instead of being rubbed and scoured out, as with soap and so many cheap washes. My hair is now so fluffy that it seems much heavier than it is naturally.—ADV.

How Is Your Weight?

While it is true that too much weight is not to be desired yet the fact remains that many men and women are thin to the point of danger. This danger lies in their having no reserve force or nerve power to combat deadly diseases. A little extra flesh is needed by all to feel well and to look well, and this calls up the question of how best to increase the weight. Physicians and chemists, by experiments, have solved the problem of increasing the white and red corpuscles of the blood, by the administration of 3 grain hypo-nuclane tablets, and this is usually followed by an increase of weight. Obtain in sealed packages, and take for a period of several months according to directions with package.—ADVERTISEMENT.

BALLAST WORN AT SCENE OF WRECK OF FRISCO FLYER

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LEBANON, Mo., Sept. 17.—Evidence taken today in a hearing conducted by Commissioner Frank Wightman of the Missouri Public Service Commission into the cause of the wreck of the "Texas Limited," on the Frisco, in which 27 persons lost their lives, Tuesday morning, showed that the ballast of the track at the place the wreck occurred, was "worn," and that the company recently reduced the section foreman's force from 11 to four men.

All employes of the company who testified said that these conditions could not have had any bearing on the wreck.

They said the track was in excellent condition, and that four men were sufficient to look after the five and a half miles of track in their charge. Joe White, the section foreman, testified that the gravel ballast was worn, but that he considered the track in good condition.

He said the Frisco had supplied him material for all repairs he considered necessary. Questions were asked aimed to show the effect of worn ballast might have been that the heavy rain washed out sufficient ballast to enable the rain to eat into the dirt embankment from the top, and that the greater part of the embankment might have been cut away when the train and track slipped off the embankment.

G. E. Starbird and J. E. Jones, examiners for the Interstate Commerce Commission, and Harry S. Brown, Prosecuting Attorney of Laclede County, sat with Wightman to consider the evidence. The examiners will report the details of the wreck to the Interstate Commerce Commission. Wightman requested Prosecuting Attorney Brown to consider the evidence that he might have all information in the event any criminal negligence was shown.

James A. Laughlin of 3321 Botanical avenue, St. Louis, conductor on the wrecked train, testified the weather was clear when the train departed from St. Louis and that the first rain encountered was at Cuba, 87 miles west of St. Louis. The rain was light, he said, from Cuba to Lebanon.

When the train was wrecked the passengers in the chair car became panic-stricken and Laughlin attempted to quiet them.

Wall of Water Rushes Into Car.

As the car settled into the ditch, he said, a wall of water five or six feet deep rushed into the car. He described the rescue of passengers, saying that many climbed through windows and 42 took refuge on the top side of the car, from which they later were rescued.

Laughlin said he had been running a train over the track at the place of the accident for 14 years and never before had seen water of a greater depth than three feet at the place of the accident, and that there never had been any previous trouble at that place.

James O'Brien of Springfield, engineer on the wrecked train, testified he never before had seen any volume of water at the place. When he left Lebanon he said there was no indication of heavy rain. After the train had gone more than a mile, he said, a heavy rain began falling. He testified the train was running 45 miles an hour, the maximum speed for the section of track being 50 miles an hour. When the train rounded a curve, he said, he saw an unusual amount of water on both sides of the track. The water was not running over the track, he declared, and the ties and rails were visible. He said he put on emergency brakes when he saw the water and had brought the train virtually to a stop when the train toppled with the weakened roadbed into the water.

O'Brien said there had been no occasion to think of any danger from the rain and that when he put on the emergency brakes he did so as a precautionary measure and that at that time he had no idea but that the train would pass the water in safety.

O'Brien said he passed eastbound train No. 8 at Stoutland, 13 miles east of Lebanon, and that the crew of No. 8 did not report any water trouble. No. 8 passed Goodwin Hollow, where the wreck occurred, more than an hour before the "Texas Limited" got there. He said he was satisfied that if the crew of No. 8 had encountered water danger it would have reported the fact to him.

He passed the place where the wreck later occurred at 1:08 a. m., he said, and there was no indication of high water.

No Slow Orders Issued.

The wreck was at 2:55 a. m., an hour and 40 minutes later. He said there were no slow orders issued to him because of the rain. He said that even if slow orders had been issued he would not have thought there would be trouble at that point, as he had never seen high water there. There had been no rain up to the time the train was nearing Lebanon.

General Manager Levy of the Frisco, by questioning Rhoades, brought out that the usual speed at the place of the wreck was 50 miles an hour, and that the track was in condition to stand that speed. O'Brien, recalled by Levy, said that the automatic block signal showed clear track and no danger at the place of the wreck, which, he said, proved that the rails were not washed out.

A break in a rail, he said, would cause a danger signal to show. Justice H. Shumake of Springfield, chief dispatcher on the night of the wreck, said that no information had been received of heavy rains or soft track west of Lebanon.

Joe White, section foreman, testified that when the heavy rain began he started out to inspect the track from his home at Brush Creek, two miles west of the place where the wreck occurred. He said there never had been any trouble there and that he did not go toward that place, but went west from his home. He said the rain was so heavy that he could not face it steadily, but was compelled frequently to turn his back to it.

A Sale of New Fall Suits and Coats

A Sale that offers, we believe, the highest degree of combined style, quality and value that was ever quoted to the women of St. Louis and vicinity, or anywhere else. A condition without a parallel. Never before did any American manufacturer close out surplus stocks so early. But for reasons and conditions that were unusual this manufacturer (who asks that his name be not mentioned) was compelled to make an early sacrifice. We were the fortunate purchaser and this good fortune is yours in tomorrow's sale.

1000 Suits, Worth Up to $40.00, for $10.00 and $15.00 | 1200 Coats, Worth Up to $35.00, for $5.95 $9.95 and $14.75

SUITS Every desirable cloth, every popular color, and "then some." Finest imported lustrous broadcloths, plain and novelty gaberdines, French serge, worsteds, cheviots, wool poplin, cords, checks, self stripes, needle cords, etc. The styles baffle description. Some are trimmed in rarest furs, such as fitch, skunk, Russian wolf; others have collars, cuffs and belt of panne velvet, flat braid, silk cord—still others are man-tailored or with neat touches here and there to lift them above the ordinary. 1000 suits, 54 styles, values to $45.00, in two lots.

Suits Worth to $29.50 for $10.00

Not a Suit in the lot made to sell below $19.50, most of them are worth $25.00 and $29.50; all sizes, $10.00.

This Frees Your Skin From Hair or Fuzz

(Toilet Tips)

The method here suggested for the removal of superfluous hair is quick and certain and unless the growth is extremely stubborn, a single application does the work. Make a stiff paste with some powdered delatone and water; apply this to the hairy surface and after about 2 minutes rub it off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. To avoid disappointment, be sure your druggist sells you delatone.—ADV.

HAVE COLOR IN YOUR CHEEKS

Be Better Looking—Take Olive Tablets.

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 17 years of study with his patients.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color.

If you want a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days, you must get at the cause.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects.

They start the bile and overcome constipation. That's why millions of boxes are sold annually at 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

Take one or two nightly and note the pleasing results.

CORONER URGES SCHOOLS WARN PUPILS OF AUTOS

Coroner Padberg, in a letter yesterday to the superintendents of the public and parochial schools, suggested that before classes are dismissed the teachers should warn pupils to look out for autos and street cars while on their way home. The suggestion was made in an effort to avoid accidents of this kind, of which there have been a large number recently.

Ben Blewett, Superintendent of Public Schools, said he was working on a similar plan which would be presented to the Board of Education for approval. Rev. A. V. Garthoeffner, Superior of Catholic Schools, said the matter would be explained to teachers in parochial schools. Both superintendents favored the suggestion.

Padberg suggested the teachers might say, "What are you going to do on your way home? Are you going to look up and down the streets for automobiles and street cars?"

MAYOR WELCOMES STATE EDITORS IN CONVENTION

Visitors Ko to Jefferson Barracks, Where They Will Dine With the Soldiers.

The first formal session of the Missouri Press Association was held this forenoon at the Planters Hotel. It was called to order by Fred Naster of Cape Girardeau, the president. He said the object of the convention was to bring the editors closer together. Mayor Kiel delivered an address of welcome. The response was by W. O. L. Jewett, editor of the Shelbina Democrat.

More than 300 editors, many accompanied by their wives and daughters, are attending the convention. This afternoon they were taken on a boat trip to Jefferson Barracks. A dress parade and drill was to be given for them and supper was to be taken with the soldiers.

There will be a business session tomorrow morning, a trip to the baseball park in the afternoon and a banquet given by the St. Louis Press Club at the American Annex in the evening.

Last night the Business Men's League gave the editors a beefsteak dinner at Cicardi's restaurant. It was followed by music, speeches, cabaret and vaudeville. Edward Hidden spoke for the league and J. Kelly Pool, editor of the Centralia Courier, for the editors.

At this morning's session B. F. Bush, president of the Missouri Pacific and Iron Mountain, made a plea for the cooperation of the newspapers in obtaining increased compensation for the railroads. He sai dthat under present conditions the railroads could not meet their obligations.

REFUSES TO TELL WHY HE SHOT FRIEND DEAD

Venice Alderman Makes No Effort to Escape After Street Killing.

J. S. Hickerson, Alderman of the Second Ward in Venice, who made no effort to escape last night after shooting and killing John P. Smith of 912 LeBaume street, St. Louis, in front of a drug store conducted by Mayor Lee at Second and Selb streets, Venice, has refused to make a statement concerning the murder.

The men, who were said to have been friends, met near the drug store about 7 o'clock last night and after a few words commenced to quarrel. Hickerson drew his revolver and fired three times.

The shooting attracted Police Chief Moran, who found Hickerson standing with the revolver in his hand, a few feet from the slain man. He was taken to the Venice jail. Hickerson is 38 years old, married and has three children. He is a carpenter.

Smith was an employe in the American Car Foundry at Madison. There were no eye witnesses to the killing.

ELECTRIC SHOCK FROM SODA MIXER KILLS MAN

Robert L. Pfeffer, 23 years old, manager of the Lebanon Drug Co., Lebanon, Ill., was killed at 9:30 o'clock last night by a shock from an electric soda fountain mixer at the company's store. He was preparing a soft drink at the mixer when there was a flash. He uttered one cry and fell to the floor. Albert Bryant and others carried him to the back of the store.

Dr. J. B. Scruggs, who was called, found no signs of life, but he called up Dr. C. H. Starkel at Belleville and asked for a pulmotor. Dr. Starkel and Manager Charles W. Taggart of the Belleville Gas Co. drove the 14 miles to Lebanon in 30 minutes in an automobile with a pulmotor, but on their arrival it was found to be useless.

Pfeffer was a son of L. L. Pfeffer, president of the Pfeffer Milling Co. of Lebanon. His parents were at the Belleville Pageant. They did not learn of their son's death until they reached home.

Pfeffer is said to have received a shock from the mixer several days ago. It is supposed that crossed wires caused the voltage entering the machine to be greatly increased.

STEVENS USED AN ENDLESS CHAIN SYSTEM IN DEALS

Former Sheriff Peter Kerth of St. Louis County, 74, Who Fears Loss of His Life's Savings of $10,000, Tells of Realty Man's Operating Plan.

More Than $150,000 of Mortgage Notes and Loans Held in Carondelet Township, of Which $100,000, Experts Say, Are of Doubtful Value.

"He Was So Prompt in Paying Interest," Say Clients of Stevens

HE was so prompt in paying the interest," is a frequent expression in connection with the Stevens failure. Farmers did not have to go to Clayton to collect interest on mortgage notes from Stevens. Without a thought as to security of the principal, they believed everything was all right because Stevens mailed them checks for interest on the day it was due.

In Carondelet Township alone 24 investors intrusted a total of $152,550 to Stevens, "the man who paid the interest."

Apprehension amounting almost to panic is sweeping through St. Louis County as a result of revelations being made daily in the investigation of Beverly C. Stevens' tangled affairs.

The first step toward a criminal prosecution was taken this morning, when Prosecuting Attorney Lashly prepared a warrant charging Stevens with obtaining money under false pretenses from an aged Kirkwood woman who gave him $1500 to invest for her. Lashly drew up the warrant and sent for the woman to sign it.

Men and women, who entrusted to Stevens the savings of a lifetime, find themselves with nothing to show for their investments but notes and deeds which experts declare to be worthless. Many lots on which St. Louis County investors have loaned thousands of dollars have been found so incumbered with other mortgages that they have no value as security. Pieces of property represented as being worth $1500 have been appraised at $40 and $50.

Plastered With Mortgages.

Buyers of homes on the installment plan have found those homes are still plastered with mortgages, despite the fact that they had made what they believed to be the final payments.

In at least two cases the investigation of Stevens' affairs have led to accusations of forgery.

In Carondelet Township, alone, $152,500 worth of mortgage notes and loans are held, representing investments made through Stevens. With the investigation of Stevens' affairs still under way it has been found that $22,000 of these claims are good, and that more than $100,000 of them are of no value, or of such doubtful value that there is little chance of ever collecting on them.

Peter Kerth of Mehlville, former Sheriff of St. Louis County, at the age of 74 years, finds himself and his wife threatened with the loss of their lifetime savings, amounting to $10,000. Notes and deeds to the face value of that amount, held by Kerth and his wife, have been found to be worthless.

Kerth says the losses through Stevens' operations will not be confined to Carondelet Township.

"He operated in all sections of the county," said Kerth to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "Many farmers in the outlying sections have not yet heard that Stevens' affairs are involved. When they learn of it they will be flocking into Clayton to have their notes and deeds investigated.

"The percentage of claims in Carondelet Township may be larger than in any other one township, but I believe it will be only a small proportion of the total for the entire county.

"Had it not been for the crop shortage this year and last year the tangled condition of Stevens' affairs might not have been discovered. His system of operating was a sort of endless chain. When the term of a mortgage expired and the investor asked for the return of his principal, Stevens would induce him to reinvest the principal in another mortgage.

Farmers Needed Money.

"Stevens would say: 'You may have your money if you want it but I have another deed which I think you will find it to your advantage to buy, so that your money won't lie idle while you are looking for another investment.' The client usually took the new deed without question.

"The crop shortage in the last two years caused many St. Louis County farmers to need ready money. They demanded cash when mortgages in which they had invested came due. In some cases they asked Stevens to find purchasers for mortgages which they held and which had not expired. Stevens' apparent inability or unwillingness to meet the demands for cash and his slowness in finding a market for the unexpired mortgages caused the first suspicion that something was wrong. I and others in Carondelet Township went to Clayton to investigate the records and we found we had been holding worthless paper."

Prompt Interest Payments.

According to Kerth and others who invested their money with him, Stevens easily outstripped other St. Louis County real estate dealers in placing mortgage loans, because of the promptness with which he always made interest payments on the notes. When dealing with other St. Louis County real estate firms the farmers would have to drive into Clayton on interest days and lose valuable time collecting the interest and waiting until the proper credits and renewals had been made.

There was no such red tape about Stevens' way of doing business. On the day the interest was due the farmer would receive a check for it by mail. A few days later Stevens would drive up to the farmer's home in his automobile and take up the note. Many farmers liked this system and the promptness with which he paid interest added greatly to Stevens' prestige.

Service to Investors.

Convenience to the investors was the keynote of Stevens' method. They didn't have to go to him. He went to them. He boasted publicly that he had covered more miles in an automobile than anyone in St. Louis County. When he went in quest of investors he carried mortgage deeds and promissory notes in his pocket.

To save themselves the trouble of a trip to Clayton or to inspect mortgaged property investors took Stevens' word for everything.

Sentiment also had much to do with easing the way for Stevens' operations. Like every other community St. Louis County has its traditions of aristocracy, its "oldest families," its heritages of "blue blood." Many of the county settlements are much older than St. Louis and pioneers were blazing trails there long before Laclede started

Your money goes to the bank somehow. Do you take it there—or does someone else?

¶ Has it occurred to you that virtually all the money you spend finds its way to some banking institution? It's a simple proposition. Much that you spend for necessities—as well as luxuries—is saved by somebody else.

¶ You may consider the nickels, dimes and quarters that you spend, with only a passing thought, too insignificant to save. Yet you will observe that hundreds of people around you are eager to get those small sums of yours. They take them to the bank—along with many other small sums like yours.

¶ Perhaps you don't know that $2 deposited each week in a Mercantile Savings Account will amount in 10 years to $1244.69 and that $1 will open your account with us.

Appetite Will Follow a Good Digestion

Nearly everyone indulges their appetite and the digestive organs are abused, resulting in a congestion of poisonous waste that clogs the bowels and causes much misery and distress.

The most effective remedy to correct this condition is the combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This is a natural, pleasant-tasting remedy, gentle, yet positive in action, and quickly relieves indigestion, constipation, sick headache, belching, etc. Drug stores sell Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, and in thousands of homes it is the indispensable family remedy. More Than Likely You're Mistaken About THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN

Every week—and this week in particular—it contains facts and information that are of as much practical value to St. Louis men and women as to the farmers "up-State."

Men and Women of St. Louis, Consider This Week's Issue

EGGS THAT COME IN CANS—tells what is being done right in your own state of Missouri in developing the egg canning business, and shows how the housewife can buy absolutely pure and fresh eggs in cans.

COTTONSEED BREAD—tells about a new staff of life that may reduce the high cost of living.

SURPRISE MILK CONTESTS—tells of a new movement that is making for the protection of the milk dealer and the consumer.

EVERYMAN'S GARDEN—is a feature in every week's issue that will be worth many nickels to you if you have a garden. Each week Everyman's Garden gives you the information about gardening that you need at that particular season. (By the way, Suburbanites, there is an article called "A Poison-Ivy Remedy" in this week's issue that it will pay you to read.)

If your business interests are allied in any way with agriculture; if you are interested in flowers and home garden products; if you are earnestly trying to solve the perplexing problem of the high cost of living, five cents a week spent for THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN will be the merest trifle in comparison with the valuable practical information that you will get from the pages of this weekly.

If you have business interests connected with the handling or shipping of livestock, you will miss something that is of interest and value to you every week that you "overlook" THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN. LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

A Cripple's Appeal.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In this great rushing age of competency, when the world's creed is the survival of the fittest, is there not some place, some little notch, wherein may be sheltered one of the unfit?

I am a young man, age 27 but a dependent. Since childhood I have been imprisoned in a wheel chair; in 20 years my feet have not borne my weight. I have managed to secure a fair education, though not the tenth of what I would wish, because I have read much and have the ability to learn quickly. But of what use is it to me if I can find no way in which I can turn it into the terribly necessary dollars and cents of the commercial world? One cannot live on masterful writing and beautiful poems. For 27 years I have lived from the toil of a noble mother who has grown gray and broken in the never-ending endeavor to earn money enough to keep the wolf from the door—and he is a persistent fellow, that sleepless wolf; many, many times has his sharp sniffing nose edged its way through the crack in the door, but mother has always managed to force him back—a little ways.

"Hope springs eternal in the human breast," and it has been upon hope that I have lived these last 10 years. Hope that the time would come when I could begin to repay, in part, all these years of patient toil and sacrifice. "Surely," I thought, "somewhere in this great old world there is a place for me. But Pope was wrong. Even "hope" is not eternal for it is dying within me. It seems that I am not to have my chance.

Perhaps some of the many Post-Dispatch readers can suggest another way out besides the grim dark way that seems inevitable. Do not misunderstand me, please. I do not ask charity. I will have none of it. I will no longer be a dependent. If I cannot be independent and live I am, at least, independent of life. Life is good—very good. I do not like to think of losing it, but I do not fear, and when the time comes my finger will not tremble nor my hand falter in the simple act that will give me my release. 'Every man must live by the sweat of his own brow," and unless I can find something that I can do to earn my own livelihood I must make my exit. There is no bright spot in the future of those of us who must continually feel that the least of our needs can be supplied only by the sacrificing of some necessity on the part of those whom we love.

If anyone can suggest a way, however menial, so long as it be neither dishonest nor begging, it will be eagerly seized upon. If there is work in the world for me I must find it soon for my decision is reached. I have declared my independence; and who can blame me?

"Why, if the soul can fling the dust aside,
"And naked on the air of Heaven ride,
"Wer't not a shame—were't not a shame for him
"In this clay carcass crippled to abide?"

A DISCOURAGED UNFIT.

"Will" and "Shall."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I recently noticed signs stationed at the custom house, Eighth and Olive streets, which evidently were intended to instruct drivers, chauffeurs and chauffeuses. I quote one herewith verbatim: "Vehicles will not stand between these posts." The misuse of shall and will seemed greatly in vogue during the Roosevelt reform era, but I am surprised to find a continuation of such errors, especially in and around our Selph-rectifying postoffices.

ANONYMOUS.

R. R. Wrecks and Heavy Rains.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The recent wreck on the Frisco gets one to thinking! Especially a traveling man, with many nights on the rail. While some accidents seem unavoidable, this one, and many similar, could have been prevented, if, on heavy rainy nights, the track was patroled. Your account relates "C'Brien (engineer) had encountered bad tracks, due to washouts, at a number of places along the line, and was only running about 15 miles an hour, although the train is scheduled to make 37 miles an hour, including stops."

Now, my indictment is, the train dispatcher knew all this, and even if no regular night patrol, he should have section men out as emergency to see to weak bridges, waterspout or not, as the heavy rain that night began not later than 11, and they had fair warning. There should be compulsory patrol of railways all hours of night, rain or shine, with criminal prosecution of operating officers if not enforced. There are too many lives at stake, which a moderate expenditure would save. Such an accident as this will cost the Frisco, 27 dead at $5000 is $135,000, not to mention the 18 injured, who will have recourse.

AMERICAN.

CRIPPLING OUR LUMBER TRADE.

A statement of facts made by the St. Louis Lumberman relative to an increase in the freight on forest products put in effect by Southwestern railroads having their headquarters in this city is so complete as to leave little to be added.

The merits of this case are not involved in the general increase authorized for roads in the central traffic district. Briefly, the rate from Southern mills to St. Louis has been increased by 20 cents a ton without any increase in the through rate to Chicago or to competitive points off the lines of the roads. The discrimination against St. Louis is the fact emphasized by the Lumberman in vigorous language.

On a car of lumber that will be unloaded here, the rate is $4 a ton. But on a car that will pass through here, destined for a competing city, the rate to St. Louis is only $3.80 a ton.

The charge is unjust enough in the case of local wood-working factories which have to pay the discriminating rate for the raw material they advance in manufacture. Comment is not needed to show its greater injustice on re-shipping yards which sell forest products to outside points in the same shape in which they are received.

Why should roads which are largely owned here and are managed from here place such an outrageous handicap on the town in which they have large interests and with whose advancement their own welfare is so intimately associated? The whole thing backs up to an oppressive condition which has been in existence for many years and which more than anything else explains St. Louis' slow progress—an oppressive condition imposed by local railroads, which have always looked on St. Louis' rivals as communities to be encouraged in all possible ways, but on St. Louis itself only as a community to be milked.

For this discrimination is a reappearance in new form of the terminal "arbitrary." It is explained as due to the fact that lumber destined for this city has to pay a 25-cents-a-ton terminal charge, which lumber destined for places beyond does not pay. The Lumberman, brushing away all the old, worn-out sophistries by which this ancient imposition is defended, says:

The 1 1-2 cents collected in the rate to St. Louis and set aside for the improvement and value-enhancement of the great property represented in the St. Louis gateway terminal account must be regarded as merely "found money" and not, for earnings purposes, as any part of the rate. In other words, the theory set up for rate-making and bookkeeping is that St. Louis should pay for its terminals on both sides of the river through the operation of a local collection agency, the Terminal Railroad Association.

The increased handicaps in these days of slack business, fierce competition and vanishing profits are nothing to these St. Louis railroad men. "Soak 'em" is apparently the shibboleth of St. Louis-headquarters traffic officials, regardless of justice or of the effect of the act on the continuance of traffic vital to the welfare of their roads.

"But what," adds the Lumberman, "is the use? Who can effectually interpose reason between a greed-fired mania and its object?" It says that a club and the fighting spirit to utilize it are the only things that will bring helpful results.

The Post-Dispatch has been using that club for a good many years now. What is the Transportation Committee of the B. M. L. doing? Where is its club?

AN IMPROPER MISSILE.

A Missouri husband, suing for divorce, alleges that his wife "hurled a bust of Abraham Lincoln at her husband's head," and, on another occasion, summoned him by telephone to "come home so she could shoot him."

Conceding that in the second count the lady exhibited at least a reasonable degree of sporting spirit—that chivalry of the old West which required one, going gunning for an enemy, to send notice to his purposed victim—we find ourselves quite unable to sympathize, regardless of the possible provocation, with the wife's taste in missiles.

No wife should ever hurl a bust of Abraham Lincoln at her husband's head. Such evidence of her lack of fine sentiment predisposes a jury, or even a Judge, to scrutinize more coldly than otherwise they might her allegations against her odious yokemate. No American husband is worthy to have a bust of Lincoln shattered upon his faithless head.

If anything of the sort must be done, to maintain discipline, let a bust of Socrates be used, and the name Xantippe be breathed like a benediction upon the performance.

SOME PEACE CASUALTIES.

Some painful incidents of peace were scattered through yesterday's news:

James O'Keefe, 19 years old, a janitor at the Washington University, who lives at 1623 Olive street, was painfully burned last night when a bowl of hot soup spilled on him when he bumped into a man carrying the liquid while wrestling with a fellow roomer.

* * *

Jesse F. Yates, Highway Commissioner of Madison County, Ill., volunteered to move a neighbor in Edwardsville yesterday.

When the wagon was loaded with furniture, Yates got on to ride to the new home. On the way the branch of a tree struck a piano and pushed it over on Yates. He was seriously injured about the back and neck.

* * *

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Sept. 16.—While ringing a bell standing upon the upper platform of a windmill at a charivari party at the home of a newly married couple at Arrowsmith, Alva Moore was shot in the breast by some unknown celebrant.

* * *

Haste to close his desk in his office in the Title Guaranty Building, resulted disastrously for Constable John C. Boepple of the Fourth Justice of the Peace District, yesterday evening.

Boepple said he pulled down the roller top of his desk with his left hand, but neglected to remove his right hand from underneath it. An examination revealed that several small bones on his right hand had been fractured.

It was a harrowing day all 'round. Our office boy stumped his toe about 1:10 p. m., necessitating his retirement for the day at about the time the Browns opened their double header with Chicago; and the assistant city editor painfully wounded his left forefinger with a pin while endeavoring to mark up the advance of the allies north of Reims on the war map.

France informs us that no more American Red Cross nurses are needed over there for the present. Oh, very well; there's plenty for them to do right around here at home.

REGISTRATION DAY.

The Citizens Bridge Committee's reminder of registration day is timely. Citizens who do not qualify for voting by registering will be debarred from voting on the bond issue. Every vote will be needed to assure the necessary two-thirds majority of the vote cast.

The only day for registration is today. Polling places in the precincts will be open until 10 p. m. The majority for the bonds should be decisive. St. Louis should go on record again as a progressive city.

ONE-MAN RULE BY REASON.

Charging that President Wilson made war upon Mexico through the abject submission of Congress to his will and that congressional legislation is merely the ratification of his plans, the Boston Traveler declares that the President is as much of an autocrat as the Kaiser. It says:

> Leaving out of account the question of war, which by its very nature precludes the idea of a plebiscite, there is abundant evidence that our legislative system has broken down and that one-man rule is now prevailing.

But Congress has the power to give or withhold approval of the President's plans and policies. If it yields to wise counsel and superior judgment it exercises the full power of an independent representative legislature as much as it would by opposing foolish counsel and bad judgment.

The Boston Traveler confuses agreement between co-ordinate executive and legislative branches of the government with despotic enforcement of the executive will. It has not sense enough to distinguish between one-man rule by reason and one-man rule by autocratic decree.

Our misguided contemporary need not fear that Congress will not oppose a fool President or a presidential usurper. It must show that Mr. Wilson is either a fool or a knave to make its case.

STEADY PROGRESS IN MEXICO.

> This action is taken (the Washington Government explains), in view of the entire removal of the circumstances which were thought to justify the occupation. The further presence of the troops is deemed unnecessary.

First Chief Carranza and Gen. Villa have adjusted their differences of policy. Each has conceded something of the other's position, to end internal warfare and procure fulfillment, in the largest possible measure, of the Mexican people's desire for liberty, for access to the land and for relief from the oppression of foreign exploiters. Carranza says:

> The Constitutionalists are working amicably together and with the single purpose of establishing permanent peace and a stable government. All reports as to divisions in our ranks are false. Gen. Villa is working in perfect harmony and genuine loyalty. By reason of his patriotic attitude and his high merits I have just promoted him to the rank of General of Division.

The Carranza government has taken over the Mexican national railways. There is nothing alarming in this. The Mexican nation owns a majority of the stock of the railways. If it is not satisfied with their management, it has a perfect right to assume control and modify the management. The service is being restored, as rapidly as possible, to the ante-war basis.

THE POWER OF LIFE AND DEATH.

Argument rages as to who started the war—and will be raging years hence.

But everybody admits that somebody started it—some one body; and that is sufficient for our point.

No one individual, and no small group of individuals, should have the actual power of life and death over millions of their fellow creatures.

SOISSONS JEAN D'ARC.

Mme. Eloise Macherez did more in one day to advance the cause of woman in France, heretofore an unfruitful soil for suffragists, than the little votes-for-women circle in Paris has done in a decade. Mayors in dozens of Northern French towns occupied by the Germans admittedly have had a hard time of it. Taxpayers hold them responsible for war levies by the enemy. Germans hold them as hostages, which is worse, and may mean shooting if things don't go right.

The Mayor of Soissons is not to be blamed for running away when the Germans came. His Board of Public Welfare and Water Commissioner and all other officials did the same. Indeed, we are rather glad he did run away, for it gave Mme. Macherez her chance. Going out to meet the enemy, she dictated terms to them, instead of permitting them to dictate terms to her. She treated with them so ably they recognized her as exercising all the power of a Mayor. They did not dare to insist on the war indemnity she refused. She compelled them to spare the town, to refrain from pillage and to quit reducing the membership of the Soisson Twenty Thousand Population Club, the town having but about 15,000 now.

No wonder she was acclaimed when she visited Paris after Soissons had been delivered out of the hands of the Germans after the retreat. She has forced all Frenchmen to become advocates of The Cause. That was to be expected. But she has done more. What courageous German soldier, observing the resourcefulness and capacity of the Jean d'Arc who saved Soissons, can persist in his denial of political rights to his own women on returning home after the war?

Yet this big and robust creature
Had been christened Violet.

He is big and strong and husky;
He's not handsome, not by far;
He is low-browed, scrappy, ugly,
Grafting booze at every bar.
He associates with ruffians,
And a yeggman is his pal,
Yet this unforbidding fellow
Had been christened Per-ci-val.

He is sissified and happy
And he shrinks from blows and strife,
And he never said a scrappy
Word in all his peaceful life.
He would show a streak of yellow
If he saw a wooden gun;
Yet this flossy little fellow
Has been christened Well-ing-ton.

She was built of bone and gristle,
And her nose was sharp and thin,
And her eyes were sharp as gimlets,
And she had a scrappy chin;
With her tongue she tore her neighbors'
Reputation up, and she
In the days beyond recalling
Had been christened Cha-ri-ty.

THE READERS' WAR GUIDE.

Our paper of yesterday demonstrated how impossible it is for modern warfare to meet the requirements of the newspaper business. There was a time when men could fight as fast as printers could set type, but they can't do it now. We wait continually for the war to catch up, and frequently go to press without it. This is not as it should be. There should be a fresh battle in every edition, and the opposing hosts should be chasing one another around through the paper in a way to make war times somewhat more stirring than those of peace. That this was not so yesterday was no doubt due to the general exhaustion. Everybody is pegged out, and there were troops sitting around in the paper yesterday as unconcerned for the turn of events as if they were waiting for a boat to come in. The Russians were the only exception. The Russians seem never to tire of those fanciful stories of how they are winning. According to their own reports, the number of Austrians they have killed and captured exceeds the population of Austria, so there must be something wrong about that. The Weather Bird says there are thousands of Austrians back in the paper who not only have not been captured, but never will be. He dares anybody to find them.

However, one cannot help realizing that if war is to continue as inadequate to the newspaper business as it has been the last three or four days, it is not going to be long before the newspapers are going to condemn war. Once that happens, peace shall become a reality, and it will last a long time. Merely meeting somewhere and singing peace songs, as Mr. Carnegie and his friends do, will never bring about peace. It will have to become necessary to the prosperity and well-being of some powerful factor in our civilization like the newspaper business, and be suppressed because it no longer serves. That is the whole matter in a nutshell. Anybody could see what is coming yesterday. There was no actual fighting anywhere in the paper. It smelled of powder, and there was an occasional smoke cloud here and there, but that was all. The newspapers cannot spare their space for that sort of business. The troops on our first four pages will have to fight or get off. We are not conducting a bivouac or anything of that sort.

WAR.

Shrill, like the polar blast through winter sky,
O'er steel-clad heads the crimson banners high,
As Despotism stalks o'er Freedom's grave.

Rides Ignorance, and at her death-cart's wheels
Crawl Art and Civilization, smirched with mud
And filth barbaric; senseless Culture reels,

Rough-shod with steel and iron; Science dies,
That lifted man from darkness to the skies!

Oh, righteous God, that in this day of light
Man should be driven forth with sword and gun
To rot and molder in the cause of Might!—
Is this Thy will—is thus Thy bidding done?

Behold the millions that go forth! And why?
To further Thy great cause? Thy cause is Peace,
And Righteousness and Justice—these must die
For selfish Greed! Wilt Thou bid slaughter cease?

Through Time's long register from age to age,
What boon unguiding e'er to humankind

Great Lord, raise Thou Thy hand! Let Thou Thy voice
Ring with the sound of thunder o'er the earth,
And cry Thou halt! and let Thy sons rejoice

And wrench the reins of Might from evil hand,
And give us Peace—the Peace that with it brings
The Brotherhood of Man, o'er sea and land.

By Lewis B. Ely.

"Them doggone fellers in Europe must jest love to fight. They hit the whole day yistiddy, and here I look in the mornin' paper and doggone if they aint at it agin today!"

Our great international war umpire shifted his cud of reflection and went on to say:

"Nobody needn't never feel sorry for 'em when they're havin' sech a good time. Was you ever in a fight—don't you recollect what a heap of pleasure you had? It didn't matter whether you got licked or not.

"And people can say what they please, but everybody is enj'ying this fight fustrate. It's human nater for folks to love to watch a fight. The only trouble is that most fights is too short and sweet. It ain't often you git a chance to set and watch a good long one like this—and it ain't no use pertendin' we're sorry that we have to see it.

"Folks don't snatch up newspapers like hot cakes and read theirself goggle-eyed over peace news. They don't fergit their meals readin' about that there Hague. They don't set up all night porin' over Mr. Bryan's peace treaties. They don't rave about Mr. Andy Carnegie in their nightmare. In times o' peace folks don't meet each other on the streets and ask each other, 'Well, what do you think about the Peace today?' The papers don't git out no peace extrys every day, but they would if anybody would buy 'em. Even the preachers likes to preach on war—but did you ever hear a preacher preach on peace?

"We're all goin' to pertend that we're in a terrible hurry for peace—but it would be a awful disapp'intment if it was to come too sudden."

Likely Enough.

From the Boston Transcript.

The President's decision to run again must have set Secretary Bryan to figuring out how old he will be in 1920.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

BEAUTY CULTURE.

G. C.—We know of no "white and pink face bleach."

JANOWICH.—Ingrowing finger-nails are unusual and may indicate some internal disorder which a physician should treat. Something soft might be pushed under them.

MISS X.—Exercise for stoutness: Lie on back on floor, with arms stretched above head so that hands can grasp some firm object like the bedpost, and raise the legs alternately. Afterwards place arms close to sides and rise slowly to sitting posture without help from hands or arms.

ETIQUETTE.

THREE GIRLS.—In passing persons, one or more, on the street, keep to the right. (Ask 20 N. Euclid for other answer.)

WORRIED.—Neither bridemaid nor best man is necessary to marriage ceremony, unless you wish to be formal and follow an old custom. Even a ring is not necessary. Being free Americans, you may do as you please matrimonially.

HEALTH HINTS.

MAY.—The nervous young man must try to cure himself mentally; must keep his mind off himself and pay no attention to anything disagreeable.

EDITH.—Headache remedies: Simultaneous applications of hot water to feet and back of neck. Apply mustard plaster to stomach. Frequently bathing face in cold water, in which there is sweet spirits of ammonia, half teaspoon to ordinary basin of water is the proportion, and in this the face is soaked, using a cloth. Walking backwards 10 or more minutes has cured. Putting the feet in hot water is another cure. Salt left on the tongue five or 10 minutes "always relieves and usually cures." For headache and yellowish-white coated tongue, three to five grains sulphate of soda, two or four times a day. The juice of a lemon, unsugared, in a glass of water, often relieves a sick headache. (Tight and high collars are said to cause headache.) A woman who suffered for years with headaches never knew that her nasal passages were almost entirely closed, and that she did practically all her breathing through her mouth. Take raw potatoes without either washing or paring, and cut into thick slices. Lay them close together on the forehead and temples and keep in place by covering with large handkerchief folded cornerwise and tied in the back. As the pieces of potato get hot replace with cold, fresh ones. Many headaches are hereditary. Marion Harland says: "I can hold out little hope of relief except that alleviation of the symptoms may be gained from watchfulness as to diet and general health, until at some turning point in the constitution the sufferer 'outlives' the tendency. The relief always comes, be the sufferer man or woman."

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

O.—Chinese chop suey is composed of flesh, vegetables, spice, sugar and oil. There should be three kinds of meat, three or twice three of vegetables, and three spices. First among meats is pork. It ought to be from fresh young pig. With sharp knife, pork should be cut into ribbons or dominoes of lean meat, about two inches long, half-inch wide and quarter-inch thick. Second and third members of the triad are liver and gizzard of a chicken. Former should be broken into small pieces, and latter sliced and scored on the edges, so that as heat expands the tissue, the pieces separate like spokes of a wheel. This use of liver and gizzard is based upon their hygienic value, the one containing cholin and cholesterin, and the other ingluvin, all three being capital digestive ferments. Best vegetable sextet consists of onion, celery, bamboo-tip, tree-mushrooms, bean sprouts, water chestnuts. The three spices are see-yao (soy sauce), fresh ginger root and red pepper. The vegetables are carefully washed, drained and cut fine, each being reduced to some special shape that serves as a distinguishing mark. The chop suey is prepared in a frying pan some two feet in diameter, shaped in the segment of a globe. Into it are poured two cups water, half cup peanut oil and two teaspoons see-yao. Then, as water begins to steam, cook throws in the ingredients, which weigh the meats a half pound and the vegetables a pound. Fire should be hot and contents of pan constantly stirred. The dish is done when the onion is moderately soft. Variants of chop suey are numberless. Pork may be replaced by any other flesh, fish or fowl, or may be combined with the latter. Among vegetables, the celery, tree mushroom, water chestnut and bamboo tip may be replaced by string beans, green peas, Lima beans, asparagus tips, rice sprouts, carrot, cucumber, kidney beans, oyster plant, escarol, kale, artichokes or sweet peppers. Of a very different effect, but of the same type, are the dishes known as sweet and pungent chop suey. In these, the meats are the same, but the vegetables are largely replaced by fruits. The cook uses onion, shallot, bamboo tips and tree mushrooms as before, but on a smaller scale. In place of the other excellents, however, he employs pineapple, laichee, carambola, mango, fig, peach, pea, apricot, plum and orange. Over them he throws some fruit juice, that of the lemon, lime or orange being preferred.

MISCELLANEOUS.

STRANGER.—Phone Provident Association, 2221 Locust, in regard to day nursery, etc.

H. W. D.—Try writing Vitagraph Co., 116 Nassau street, New York, or Essanay Co., 435 N. Clark, Chicago.

WALKER.—Government emergency issue calls for 3 per cent interest at first; may be higher for further issue.

ELECTRO.—¼ horsepower motor consumes in 36 hours 115 volts at 8 cts. per kilowatt; cost about 2½ cts. an hour.

PEARL.—Try writing State Superintendent Evans, Jefferson City, Mo., in regard to preparation for teaching small school.

DOG.—It is hard to chloroform a dog, and chloroform is costly. Another humane method is to connect an illuminating gas tube with a box.

READER.—Britain was one of the Powers that guaranteed Belgian neutrality. When Belgium was invaded Britain considered that there was cause for war.

SMITH.—The Hamburg-American Vaterland, which is larger than the Imperator, can accommodate 6000 passengers; crew, 1200. The Bismarck, another new sea wonder, is to be still larger than the Vaterland.

TILLIE.—Apprenticed telephone girl, $20 a month; increase of $2.50 every three months until monthly pay is $30. After that her pay is advanced $2.50 a month until annual remuneration is $600 a year. Chief operators, $80 a month.

IN DISPUTE.—In the State Soldiers' Home at St. James, Mo., the soldier is allowed to retain his pension. This is not the case in homes in all the states, but it is so in national soldiers' homes. Write superintendent for information.

CAMPFIRE GIRL.—The Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund has been maintained by the Post-Dispatch's readers for the past 10 years. It has contributed annually an average of nearly $1000 each summer to the work of saving the tenement babies from sickness and death due to impure milk. It pays the June, July, August and September milk bills of the St. Louis Pure Milk Commission and defrays the entire cost of the distribution of free ice to tenement mothers and the sick poor by the Free Ice and Sick Diet Circle of the King's Daughters. It now is largely maintained by the children composing the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk League, the membership of which is now nearly 3000. It has helped the Pure Milk Commission to establish and keep in operation 18 pure milk stations in various crowded districts of St. Louis for the distribution of pure milk to the tenement mothers. A notable result of the work is that St. Louis, both last summer and now, has the lowest baby death rate of any of the large cities in the United States.

Peter's Sacrifice

For the Sake of a 20-Minute Chat With His Father, a Convict Must Spend Four More Years in Prison.

BY GEORGE H. ELLERTON.

THE old man with the bent shoulders hobbled through the gate of the penitentiary and followed the officer into the Warden's room. There he stood staring helplessly round till the man at the desk stopped writing and looked up inquiringly.

"What can I do for you?" he asked.

The visitor started nervously.

"It's about my son," he murmured; "he's in here."

There was a moment's silence, the prison official evidently thinking that his visitor would continue, but the old man hung his head and remained quiet.

"What is his name?" asked the Warden.

"His real name is Peter Halsbury," he replied, "but he ain't in here under his real name. Look, mister, it's like this. Peter was the best boy that ever lived, but he loved a girl, an' when she went back on him he jest got a little wild. You know, mister, a lot of young fellers do that. But he's a good boy."

The Warden nodded. He had heard the same story many times, but he had sympathy to spare for the old man who tried to shield his son.

"It was jest that girl goin' back on him," repeated the visitor. "Pete was a straight 'un up till then. He had a heart bigger'n any boy around the place, an' he wasn't afraid of much Then as I told you he went wild a bit, an' I hear as he got into this box. Young Dud Peters told me he was here, an' Dud knows."

The Warden Consults the Pages.

THE Warden pulled the heavy register towards him and looked over the pages.

"There is no Peter Halsbury in here," he said.

The old man moved closer.

"No, I told you he wouldn't be here under his right name. But he's here all right, an' I jest wish I could see him. See, mister, it's like this. I'm jest run to the length of my chain, fair petered out, an' I'd like to see the boy 'fore I go West to die. I've come a good way to see him, mister. He's my only son, an' he was a mighty good son up to the time that girl fooled 'im. I'd jest like to shake his hand if it could be fixed. He was a good boy, an' if he knew that his old dad wanted to speak to him he—he"—

The old man's voice died away in a faint whisper, and the Warden fumbled nervously with his papers.

"I will make an attempt to find your son," he said, slowly. "If you come back in three hours I might have news for you."

The long lines of convicts were drawn up in front of the workshops before being marched to their cells for their midday meal, when the Warden stepped forward and addressed them.

"An old man called here this morning to see his son," he said, quietly. "He thinks it will be his last opportunity of seeing him, as he is very old and is now going West to die. But the son is here under an assumed name, and we cannot locate him. Now I am going to call the man's right name, but before doing so I will give him warning. If he thinks that the fact of his real name being known to the authorities might lead to further prosecution he may keep quiet. If he doesn't, he can see his father, who will return to the jail after dinner. The name is Peter Halsbury."

Peter Confesses to His Name.

THERE was a shuffling of many feet along the line when the name was called. Convicts gave sighs of relief and glanced at each other wonderingly. Each man thought that Peter Halsbury, if he was in the long lines, would be a considerable fool if he made himself known, and they nudged one another to express their contempt of the Warden's tactics.

"A nice idiot he'd be to own up," murmured a low-browed man in the rear rank, and his companions snickered.

"Peter Halsbury is the name," repeated the Warden.

There was a moment of tense silence, then a broad-shouldered man in the rear rank pushed his way through the line to the front, took two steps forward and stood to attention. The warden and the prison officials stared. The prisoner who had stepped forward was known as John Gregory.

"I am Peter Halsbury," he said, quietly. "I would like to speak to my father when he returns."

That afternoon father and son conversed for a short 20 minutes in the editors' room, but while they were bidding each other an affectionate farewell, the Law was busy. The warden of Entwala Penitentiary communicated the fact of the resurrection of Peter Halsbury to the authorities, and those authorities were busy looking up records to see if Peter was wanted for some other offense. And the Law did not seek in vain. Peter Halsbury had slipped twice from the path of virtue, but for the first slip he did not pay a penalty because the Law was not familiar with his whereabouts. Thus it came to pass that the same train that took old Halsbury West to die, carried his son to the county seat to stand his trial for an offense committed two years previous.

The Verdict Is Four Years.

THE attorney for the people who conducted the prosecution of Peter Halsbury made a brilliant effort in stating the case to the jury. The crowd in the courtroom shuddered as they listened to the remarkable manner in which retribution followed the evildoer.

"This man," cried the attorney, "has been a fugitive from justice for two years. But justice is surefooted and tireless, gentlemen. Emerson has said that crime and punishment grow upon the same stalk, and the hand that plucks the one will surely gather the other. Halsbury's case is an example. He was an inmate of Entwala Penitentiary under the assumed name of Gregory, but by a curious little happening, one of those little incidents that upset the best plans of criminals, his real name became known, and he was dragged to the bar of justice."

The courtroom applauded the effort of the Prosecuting Attorney when he took his seat, after demanding a verdict of guilty, but the prisoner sat grim and defiant. The presiding Judge asked if he had any defense, but he shook his head sadly. An attempt to defend himself seemed a mere waste of words to Peter Halsbury at that moment. The jury retired and in three minutes returned with a verdict of guilty, and the prisoner was sentenced to four years' imprisonment.

In the little corridor where the sentenced prisoners waited before being conveyed to the jail, an inquisitive officer who had listened to the trial, inquired how the authorities had discovered Halsbury's real name, and the prisoner told the story of his father's visit.

"I don't mind the four years," he said, "but if my old dad knew I got it through owning up to my right name for the sake of a 20-minute chat with him, it would about end him."

The officer took out his tobacco pouch and passed some of its contents to the prisoner as they moved forward.

"There's no need to tell you to keep your mouth shut about me giving you this tobacco," he whispered. "You're made of good stuff if you have slipped a cog."

And the heart of Peter Halsbury was comforted much by the assurance.

Where Amber Comes From.

DO you know that your amber beads, if they are real amber, usually come from the Baltic Sea, when after a heavy storm large quantities of a fossil resin are washed up and captured in nets by the fishermen, who turn it over to the Prussian Government, which has the monopoly and also owns large mines along the coast where it is dug from a certain blue stratum of earth.

The carving is usually done by women and the residue from the lathes is used for varnish.

CHAPTERS FROM A WOMAN'S LIFE

By Dale Drummond.

Chapter LXVIII.

NEARLY everyone in our set had an automobile, most of them two. I reminded Jack of what he said when he first looked at the lot—that "it was large enough for a garage."

"I guess I was talking through my hat," Jack returned, having forgotten all about mentioning it. "Have you any idea, Sue, what it costs to keep a motor?"

Why, if you build your own garage it won't cost much, and we really need a car. I'm ashamed to be continually asked if we keep one or how we can get along without one."

"Well, I have talked to a lot of fellows who own cars," Jack argued, "and they all say that it averages them between two and three hundred dollars a month."

"Oh, but that's counting a chauffeur! Of course you would run the car yourself."

"How much pleasure would you and the children get out of a car if I did? A ride Saturday afternoons an another on Sunday, if it were pleasant. No, Sue, we will wait for a car until we can afford a man to run it and to care for it. I haven't time. So until we can afford to spend more than my salary for its upkeep I rather think you will do without."

"But you would like one, wouldn't you?" I insisted.

"Certainly I would. I hate the crowded cars, the pushing and crowding a suburbanite has to endure. And I hate it more every time Eberhardt drives me in. By the way, Sue, he has a new runabout, a peach!"

"Sell it, I suppose. Why?"

"I Press Jack to Buy an Auto."

"WHY don't you buy it, Jack? I'll bet he would let you have it dirt cheap! And"—

"Why, Sue, it's only big enough for two," he interrupted.

"I know, but you can teach me to run it, and I can sometimes take the children out. Then you can ride into town, and when I am in shopping or anything we can come out together. I really think it would be good for you."

"Well, I'll talk to Eberhardt about it," Jack replied. "I suppose I could put up a shack something like this"—taking a pencil and paper from his pocket to illustrate—"for about $200. Then if I drove it myself the upkeep wouldn't be much. That is, unless I busted too many tires!" he finished grimly.

"Get it if you can!" I told him.

Jack talked with Harry Eberhardt about it that very afternoon, and when he came home he told me that he had a half notion to buy it.

"Eberhardt offered it to me dirt cheap, as you said he would, Sue, and then said I might keep it in his garage until I could build one."

"That was nice of him," I responded. "I hope you will buy it. But, Jack, be sure and build the garage large enough to hold two or three machines. No knowing how many we will keep when you become a millionaire!" I joked, yet meaning every word of what I had said.

Emelie was now old enough to go to school part of the day, and I put her in an expensive kindergarten. Jack grumbled a little when I told him of the tuition, but I had my way. The children of all the wealthy residents went to this school, and I wouldn't listen to sending her elsewhere.

Mother would now be with us in a few days, and I looked for, while dreading, her coming.

Grandma Comes for a Visit.

JACK was as pleased as a schoolboy when we received the letter telling us the day we might expect her. Evidently HE had nothing to conceal! He came home the night before she was to arrive with a lovely fern he had carried all the way from town.

"Why didn't you get one out here?" I asked. "That was too heavy for you to carry so far"—attempting to lift it.

"It was such a beauty I couldn't pass it. Your mother's ferns are so wonderful I wanted to find the best one I could for her."

We were all a little excited that evening. We had told the children that "Grandma was coming," and while Emelie did not remember her, and Jack Jr. had never seen her, and was too young to appreciate having a grandmother, they both absorbed a little of our feeling. The last thing before we went to bed Jack and I took a look into 'mother's room." Everything was in perfect order, and I thought it looked lovely.

"Stay here a minute, Sue!" and Jack rushed off down the stairs, returning with his arms filled with books and magazines, which he arranged on the table to his liking. "Now it looks more livable!" he remarked, standing a little away to see the effect. Then, like a bashful schoolboy, he drew a box from his pocket and laid it beside them on the table.

"What in the world is that?" I asked in surprise.

"Only a box of peanut candy. Don't you remember how fond your mother is of it?" he asked, blushing.

"Indeed, I do, and you needn't blush! I think it was perfectly dear of you to think of it!" And I threw appreciative arms around his neck and kissed him.

"I do wish she would consent to stay with us," Jack said, returning my embrace. "We always seem nearer together when she is with us. Just getting ready for her has made us better pals than we have been for some time."

BILLY PIG GOES HUNTING

By Mrs. F. A. Walker.

ONE day Billy Pig was walking down the road and he met Mr Dog. "Good-morning, Mr. Dog!" said Billy Pig, tipping his hat in the most respectful manner, for he thought Mr. Dog a very wise animal.

"Where are you going?" asked Mr. Dog. "If you have nothing better to do, Billy Pig, come with me into the woods; I am going a-hunting."

"First, we will go to a woodchuck hole I know of," said Mr. Dog, "and see if I can drive him out.

Mr. Dog found the hole where the woodchuck lived and went to it and began to bark. Pretty soon Billy Pig could hear the woodchuck inside, and Mr. Dog told him this was the time to prove if he was a good hunter.

BILLY PIG stood where Mr. Dog told him—right in front of the hole, and looked very intently to see if the woodchuck showed his head.

When Billy Pig picked himself up Mr. Dog was nowhere to be seen. "I guess he got scared," said Billy Pig, "and I always thought Mr. Dog was a brave fellow. I will show him how to catch that woodchuck all alone and have the laugh on Mr. Dog."

Billy Pig poked his nose in the hole, but he could see nothing. "I will try the other hole," said Billy, 'that may be larger." And so it was, for Mr. Dog had dug away the earth each time he poked in his head, so that Billy Pig found quite an opening at the other door of the woodchuck's house.

INDEED, he found room enough for almost the whole of his body and he could see quite well that there was no one at home, but when he tried to get out it was quite another thing. He was stuck fast in the hole and he could neither go or get out. So he squealed and squealed, but no one came, and Billy Pig had about given up all hope of ever getting his head out when something came in at the other end of the hole and Billy Pig got a sharp scratch on his nose and then another and his face smarted with pain.

He squealed and he kicked his hind legs and suddenly he found himself on the ground rolling down the side of the hill.

When he got up he saw Mr. Dog coming toward him on the run. "Where did you go?" asked Billy Pig. "Were you afraid?"

Then he noticed Mr. Dog's master standing at the other door of the woodchuck's house, where Mr. Dog had stationed him, and the next thing Billy Pig knew—"bang, bang," went the gun which Mr. Dog's master carried and he saw Mr. Dog dance around in the most foolish way at his master's feet.

Billy Pig watched Mr. Dog as he trotted away. "He is not as smart or as brave as I thought he was," said Billy Pig. "He had to get his master to catch that woodchuck for him, and I am sure I would have caught him all alone if he had been in his house. It is not always the ones that look brave that are the bravest—that is plain to be seen."

Old Family in County.

The Stevens family settled in St. Louis County in 1789 and its members for many years were among the largest landholders there.

B. C. Stevens' father was the most widely known physician in the county. He at one time owned large tracts of land in the Creve Couer Lake region and in Carondelet township. He is said to have sold most of this property to pay debts incurred through unfortunate business ventures. His integrity in meeting his obligations added to the prestige of the Stevens family.

Many men who are now facing heavy losses through the operations of B. C. Stevens were close friends of Stevens' father. This feeling of friendship for the family caused many to aid Beverly Stevens in his business ventures.

His Start in Business.

It is a matter of current comment in Clayton that when he started in the real estate business about 25 years ago his sole capital was $100 borrowed from O. P. Ballwin, now the oldest realty dealer in St. Louis County. As to the amount of the loan, Ballwin today refused to confirm this. "It is true that I started B. C. Stevens in business," he said.

George P. Aff of Affton also was a powerful friend and sponsor of Stevens at the beginning of his business career. Aff, now dead, at that time was very wealthy and had great influence in Carondelet Township. His introduction of Stevens as the son of the revered Dr. Stevens caused many residents of the township to become Stevens' clients.

Two sons of George P. Aff are among those who have worthless paper representing investments made through Stevens.

In recent years Stevens' apparent prosperity disarmed suspicion instead of creating it. It was not considered strange that the man who had started his business on a "shoestring" and a borrowed string at that, had far outstripped many older real estate dealers who were well established in business when he was born. His success seemed to many to be the proper heritage of a son of the house of Stevens. "Blood will tell" was a frequent commentary when his apparently phenomenal success was under discussion.

Except as to his promptness in paying interest Stevens was regarded as rather an "easy going" man. He fraternized with his customers when he called at their homes or when they visited his office. Occasionally he drank with them, but was not known as a drinking man.

His fondness for feminine society was generally known in Clayton and women friends sometimes accompanied him on his automobile rides in the county.

In Carondelet township he frequently was a guest at social affairs at the homes of families who had invested heavily through him.

Carondelet Township Clients.

Former Sheriff Kerth yesterday gave a Post-Dispatch reporter this list of Stevens' Carondelet township clients and the face value of the notes and deeds which they hold, representing transactions with Stevens:

WARRANT DRAWN AGAINST STEVENS

Prosecuting Attorney Lashly, at Clayton, today prepared to issue a warrant charging Beverly C. Stevens of 5280 Washington avenue with obtaining money under false pretenses. Stevens is the real estate dealer who filed an assignment Monday for the benefit of his creditors.

Lashly sent for Mrs. Bertha Hanpeter, 70 years old, who resides near Kirkwood, to ask her to sign an affidavit making the charge against Stevens. He took this action after a 45-minute conference with Stevens' lawyer, B. A. Wood, during the morning. After the conference Lashly said Wood's explanation of Stevens' real estate transaction with Mrs. Hanpeter was unsatisfactory.

Mrs. Hanpeter told Lashly yesterday of her real estate transactions with Stevens, through which she believes she has lost $1500, her life savings.

Weeping bitterly and scarcely able to make herself understood because of her grief, Mrs. Hanpeter told Lashly she bought a deed of trust from Stevens more than three years ago. Every six months she received the interest due upon her investment. Last August, she said, Stevens called upon her and paid the final interest note, advising her the deed of trust had matured.

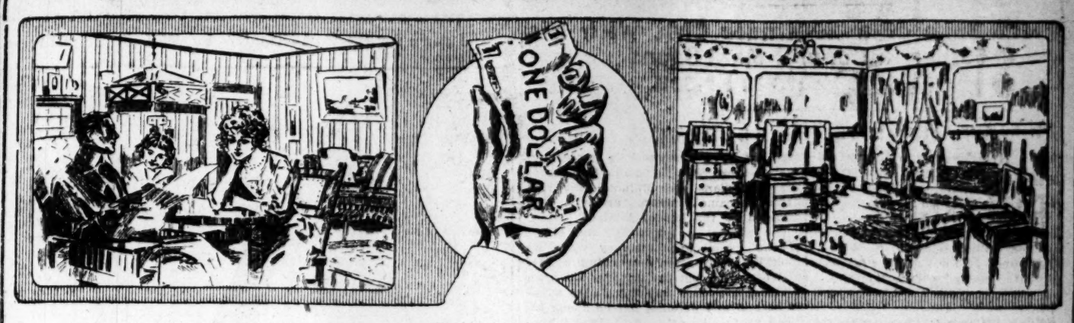

Stevens, she said, told her he wanted to take up the deed of trust and, as he supposed she still wanted the same sort of an investment, he had brought her another deed of trust for the same amount. Mrs. Hanpeter said she trusted implicitly in Stevens and that he gave her six interest notes for $45 each and one principal note for $1500.

Mrs. Hanpeter asked about the new deed of trust to secure the new investment. She said Stevens told her he would have to have the deed of trust recorded, but that he would give her an insurance policy on the property, which would answer until he could get the other instrument.

The notes in the new transaction were made payable to "James Bailey," and were indorsed without recourse with Bailey's signature. The notes were signed by Thomas and Martha Hendricks. Lashly, in his investigation, could not find anyone who knew Hendricks. Neither the name of Thomas Hendricks nor Martha Hendricks appears on the Recorder of Deeds' records as holding St. Louis County property.

Mrs. Hanpeter gave the insurance policy to Lashly, who said he found irregularities in it. He announced he would

TODAY IS ONLY TIME TO REGISTER FOR BRIDGE VOTE

Estimated That 7000 Names Had Been Put on the Lists at Noon.

Voters who have moved since they last registered, or who have become of age or been naturalized, or by residence acquired citizenship in this State, may register today for the general election Nov. 3 and the special free bridge election Nov. 6.

The registration books were opened at 8 a. m. in each of the 474 precincts of the city, and will remain open until 10 p. m. This is the only day of registration for those not so far legally registered and those who neglect it cannot vote at either election.

Commissioner Sidney May estimated 7000 had registered by noon. Chairman John W. Drabelle believed 20,000 would register before night, but said 18,000 of these would be voters who had moved, so that only about 2000 new names would appear upon the registration books. The last registration was 141,216.

Many voters took advantage of the special charter registration in June to qualify themselves for voting. Voters who registered then will not have to register today, unless they have moved.

The Republican and Democratic city committees, and the Free Bridge Committee, were working today to get every voter registered. Canvasses have been made by the political committees to list the names of all the unregistered voters, and an effort will be made to get all such persons registered during the day.

The Democratic City Committee arranged to have a man at headquarters in the Boatmen's Bank Building to give information to voters as to where they shall go to register. Such information may also be obtained at the Board of Election Commissioner's office, and the Republican city headquarters.

STEVENS USED AN ENDLESS CHAIN SYSTEM IN DEALS

Property Title Traced.

The policy is one of an insurance company for which Stevens is agent. It bears the date of Aug. 7, 1914, and, although it is supposed to run for three years the date fixed for its expiration was Aug. 7, 1914, the same day the policy was issued. The filing on the back also shows it expired Aug. 7, 1914. An entry on the margin of the policy indicates it is for $2000, but the face of the policy contains a blank where the amount should appear.

The risk, the policy states, is on "the one and one-half story brick building, on lot five of the resubdivision of lot 15 of Home Heights." In running down the title for this property Chief Deputy Recorder Redman found the last entry showed the property was conveyed by Beverly C. Stevens Jr. to the Home Heights Co. There was no trace of its ever having been owned by Thomas and Martha Hendricks, as Mrs. Hanpeter said Stevens represented to her.

Suit to Set Aside the Conveyance of Property.

James B. Miller and his wife, Lulu Miller, of 2813 Caroline street, filed suit in Clayton today to set aside the conveyance of two pieces of property by George A. Moss of Brentwood to his sister, Bessie C. Moss. The petition alleges that Moss was the maker of a $1500 deed of trust which the Millers bought from Stevens. The deed covered two lots in Ferguson, which they allege they have found to be worth only $400.

Since the deed was made, they allege, Moss has conveyed his property to his sister to escape responsibility for payment on the deed of trust which the Millers hold.

McTAGUE'S ATTRACTIONS.

Creditors Are Interested in Ownership of Woman's Flat.

Creditors of Stevens have been interested in determining the ownership of the flat at 5622 Etzel avenue, where a woman known in the neighborhood as "Mrs. Stevens" lives. B. C. Stevens has been a frequent visitor to the flat.

B. C. Stevens Jr. denies that he is the owner of the property and says it belongs to the "Mrs. Stevens" who lives there. "The property was deeded to me, but she owns it. She has a deed to it," he said today.

Before it became known that B. C. Stevens' affairs were involved, one of his two automobiles was frequently seen standing in front of the Etzel avenue flat. Since his assignment he has visited the flat several times, but has left his machine in the alley back of it.

Late Hours a Divorce Suit Charge.

Mrs. Adele Marie Gill, a daughter of Edward Westen of 4959 Wabada avenue, president of the Westen Tea and Spice Co., filed suit yesterday for divorce against Floyd Burton Gill, who formerly was manager of a department at the business of his father-in-law. Mrs. Gill avers that her husband kept irregular hours and explained he did so to punish her because she had told her mother he did not get home until 8 p. m. for dinner sometimes. They separated last May. They were married June 22, 1909.

New 88-Note Mahogany Player-Piano, $398

At this remarkably low price we include without extra charge a handsome mahogany bench to match the piano, a mahogany music roll cabinet, a beautiful scarf, your own selection of music rolls, delivery and one tuning anywhere within the city limits.

The massive mahogany player-piano illustrated at the left cannot be duplicated in an ordinary piano store for less than $600. Plays full scale 88-note player rolls and is provided with the special Aeolian expression devices mentioned below. When played by hand in the ordinary way its action, tone and responsiveness are the delight of every musician who has tried it. Only a small number of these new player-pianos of Aeolian construction are available for this sale and you are urged to make your decision promptly to avoid the disappointment of being too late.

Terms $2.50 Weekly

(While They Last!)

As announced Sunday, only 27 of these Player-Pianos were available at the beginning of this sale. They are being rapidly taken, and the remainder will not last long. Decide, before it is too late, to have one in YOUR home at this special price and on these remarkably easy terms.

The Soloist device enables the performer to clearly bring out the melody above the flow of accompaniment, which is vital to true expression, but impossible with ordinary Player-Pianos. The Artist's Sustaining Device at the will of the performer automatically reproduces the intricate pedaling effects of the great pianists. Other equally important actions of Aeolian invention are also embodied in this splendid Player-Piano.

Used Pianos at Reduced Prices

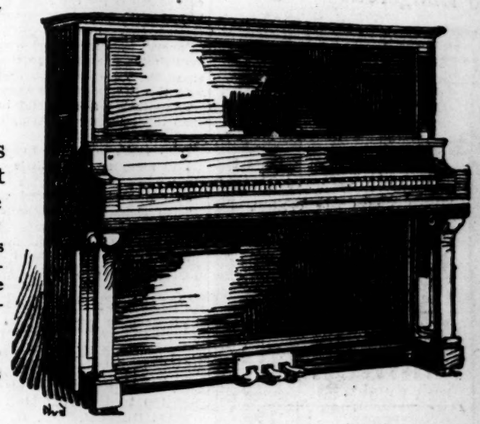

(An Important Sale)

Scores of fine used uprights and player-pianos are taken in by us every month as part payment on Pianola Pianos. These used instruments come from homes of refinement and culture, where they have been appreciated and lovingly cared for. Used instruments from Aeolian Hall, therefore, are very far above ordinary second-hand pianos. Some of them are almost like new and every one has been thoroughly overhauled by our experts and put in perfect playing condition.

You are urged to visit Aeolian Hall at once and to personally and critically examine these used instruments. The savings which you can thus make are positively startling.

BOYS' PENNY SHOW EARNS $1 TO HELP SAVE THE BABIES

Five little boys gave a penny show on Geraldine avenue for the benefit of the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund and earned $1 with which to help save the tenement babies from sickness and death due to the poison of impure milk.

The names of these five boys are Lester Gieseler, Joe Garstang, Raymond Koehn, Louis Cuddihee and Leo Daly. They worked just as hard to make their little penny show worth while as though it was a big playhouse entertainment at $2 admission prices, and they are quite properly proud of their success.

Wherefore, these five boys finely have qualified for membership in the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk League and for the ownership of League buttons and membership cards in the most brilliantly successful League season yet recorded.

And they are welcomed into the League just as cordially as though they had scored one of the biggest financial successes of the summer. That's one of the beauties of the League organization—its splendid democracy and cordial recognition of all earnest effort in behalf of the little ones of the poor.

From the big companies of youthful League workers who took part in the famous Jaspering lawn carnival, which earned $818.23 for the fund, and the two "Piper of Hamelin" performances, which earned $197, down to sweet little "Pansy," the orphan girl who this week contributed one penny to the fund that saves the tenement tots, they all come into the League on the same footing.

London In War Time

A word-picture of the world's metropolis in the most momentous period of modern times.

The writer, Samuel G. Blythe, one of the best and fairest newspaper reporters, hurried to London at the first sign of trouble. He was there when war was declared. He visited every section of the city and talked with people in every station in life, from the workingmen of the East End to the high military and naval authorities.

You will see London as she is in war time, through Mr. Blythe's article. It's different from anything that has been published in the newspapers. What the people said, how they acted, how business was affected, and how the city looked—all in the big feature,

How Can the Cards Butt In on That Flag Finish While Evers Has Their Goat?

MR. SHORT SPORT: A damage suit is about the only one that seems to fit Shorty's Case

By Jean Knott

CARDS SCORE ONE IN FIRST INNING, BRAVES TIE IT

Today's Pennant Situation

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

IT'S a two-club race now, between the Giants and Braves, with the latter club a 10—7 choice amog the bettors.

If the Cardinals win all their remaining 20 games, the Braves need win only 15 out of 23, a percentage of .650 to win the pennant.

If the Cardinals take the two remaining games from Boston they still will be 4½ games out of first place. Another defeat will forever finish St. Louis as a pennant factor.

Demaree's shut-out game against the Reds, who were deprived of Herzog's services, revived the pennant hopes in New York. The Giants cannot attain the lead this week, even though they win three games while the Braves are losing three.

Tyler, who has lost three straight, came to, just in time to set at rest the fears that the Braves were going to crack. Stallings now can risk Davis or one of his other second string men against the Cards.

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

Word from Philadelphia says that Connie Mack has almost decided to pitch Bender in the first world's series clash. Bender has been beaten only twice this season.

FENWAY PARK, BOSTON, Sept. 17.—Manager Huggins sent Sallee against the Braves in the second game of the series today. He was paired off with Wingo. Rudolph and Whaling was the battery for the Braves. The attendance was 7000. Hart and Rigler were the umpires.

FIRST INNING.

CARDINALS—Dolan doubled to center. Huggins singled to left, Dolan going to third. Magee sent a sacrifice fly to Whitted, scoring Dolan. Huggins was caught off first, Rudolph to Schmidt. Smith threw out Miller. ONE RUN.

BANCROFT NAMES PLAYERS FOR FALL BASEBALL TOUR

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Frank Bancroft, business manager of the Cincinnati Nationals, last night announced the makeup of the teams which he and Manager Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics will take on a Pacific Coast tour during the fall and winter months. It is stated that the teams will go also to Hawaii. Bancroft today completed the all-National team by signing four of the New York players.

On the all-National team will be Tesreau of New York, James of Boston, Alexander of Philadelphia and Vaughn of Chicago, pitchers; Killefer of Philadelphia and Clarke of Cincinnati, catchers; Miller of St. Louis, first base; Groh of Cincinnati, second base; Fletcher of New York, shortstop; Byrne of Philadelphia, third base, and Carey of Pittsburg, Snedgrass of New York, Burns of New York, outfielders.

On Connie Mack's all-Americans will be Bender and Bush of Philadelphia and Mitchell of Cleveland, Pitchers; Schang of Philadelphia and O'Neill of Cleveland, catchers; Hollitzel of Boston, first base; Chapman of Cleveland, second base; Bush of Detroit, shortstop; Moriarty of Detroit, third base, and Walsh and Murphy of Philadelphia and Lewis of Boston, outfielders.

Crack Chicago Runner to Oppose Local Stars in Columbia A. C. Meet

J. Loomis, Gus Aronson and John McCawley will toe the scratch in a special 100-yard dash at the Columbian Athletic Club handicap athletic meet, to be held Sunday, Sept. 27, on the C. A. C. campus. Loomis, who is national champion for the century sprint, is a representative of the Chicago A. A. and recently took a number of points in the A. A. U. meet held in Baltimore. McCawley is a representative of the Missouri A. A. and Aronson of the C. A. A.

The C. A. C. officials decided to bring the Chicago flier here, as they were not satisfied that he is a better man than Aronson. Gus was leading in the 100-yard dash at Baltimore when he collapsed 15 yards from the finish. He looked like a sure winner. His stomach had been affected by the water.

GROOME WILL BE USED IN GAME WITH BUFFEDS

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 17.—Manager Fielder Jones of St. Louis Federal team, will pitch another of his veterans, this afternoon, in hope of getting at least one game over on Buffalo. He has tried three, thus far, and everyone failed. Today he will come back with Bob Groome, the former Washington Senator twirler, who was driven from the mound in the second inning of Monday's game—the first of the series between Buffalo and St. Louis.

Manager Schlafly will use Harry Moran. St. Louis never had a chance against the Buffeds, yesterday, the local hitters finding Kuppser for a total of 17 base hits, while Earl Moore allowed but six. Every one of the Buffalo batters got one or more hits.

Schlafly's team is pretty well banged up. Catcher Blair, Shortstop Bill Louden and Tex McDonald being out with minor injuries. Blair will be in shape to get in the game today, however, should it be necessary for him to work behind the bat, but it is expected that McDonald and Louden will be out for the week. Schlafly has plenty of material, however, and the injury to two or three players are hardly noticed.

BIRMINGHAM CLUB WINS SOUTHERN LEAGUE RACE

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 17.—The Birmingham (Ala.) club of the Southern Association won the pennant for the 1914 baseball season, which ended today. Mobile finished second and New Orleans third.

The Post-Dispatch is the only evening newspaper in St. Louis that receives or publishes news gathered by the Associated Press.

Semi-Finals Will Be Reached Today in City Tennis Championships

The semi-final stage of the city tennis championship tournament, now in progress on the Triple A courts at Forest Park, will be reached this afternoon when Arthur Van Reppert, city singles champion, meets Drummond Jones. Both players have been going along in the preliminary matches in great style, and one of the best matches of the tourney should result.

In the other semi-final Roland Hoerr will meet the winner of the match between M. D. McDonald and Clarence Gamble.

In the doubles tourney, Hercules and Chouteau are matched with Bryan and Lehman, the winner to play Holthaus and Van Reppert in one semi-final. The second semi-final is between Jones and Hoerr and Crunden and Gamble.

Drummond Jones won his two matches yesterday with his customary regularity. His victims were Lynn Gamble, who went down, 6—1, 6—2, and Joe Werner, 6—3, 6—1. M. D. McDonald defeated Sid Overall more easily than was expected, 6—3, 6—2. The only doubles match resulted in a victory for Ward and Travis of Soldan High over Catlin and Gamble, 4—6, 6—2, 6—4.

Williams Wins Tennis Match.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 17.—George M. Church of Princeton and R. Norris Williams II of Harvard will meet in the final round for the intercollegiate singles tennis championship, both having won their semi-final matches in easy fashion today on the courts of the Merion Cricket Club at Haverford. Summary:

Singles, semi-final round:

George M. Church, Princeton, defeated A. M. Kidder, Princeton, 6—2, 6—2, 6—1.

R. Norris Williams II, Harvard, defeated L. Vandevander, Princeton, 6—1, 6—1, 6—1.

Cleveland Must Take Beck.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 17.—The National Baseball Commission yesterday sustained a finding of the National Board in awarding the services of Player Beck to the Cleveland Club of the American Association. Cleveland contended that the player had been sold to the Nashville club of the Southern League for $1500. The commission ruled, however, that Nashville had exercised an option to return the player in case it did not want to pay this amount.

EVERS EARNS HIS SALARY GETTING CARDINALS' GOAT

Braves' Brains Demoralizes St. Louis Players, Especially Zinn Beck.

By W. J. O'Connor.

JOHNNY EVERS, the best goat-getter in the National League, is almost entirely responsible for the Cardinals' defeat, 6—3, yesterday in Boston. Johnny has acquired the angora of one Zinn Beck, a well regulated young third baseman, and so long as he retains possession of this "nanny" Beck will never be much force in the St. Louis-Boston clash.

Evers "got" Beck's goat in the last Braves series at Robison Field, and Zinn, who, like Polly Perritt, is subject to the "rattles," has been a big aid to the Braves ever since. It was Beck's prodigious error that started the Cardinals wrong yesterday and incidentally the error was committed on a grounder from Evers.

With the score tied in the eighth inning, Evers grounded to Beck, who promptly heaved the ball into the grand stand. Evers made third on the miscue and scored on Connolly's sacrifice fly with the run which broke the deadlock and virtually decided the battle. Subsequently a pass to Devore, Schmidt's triple and Smith's sacrifice fly yielded two more runs, but they merely were excess baggage. Evers' run won.

Evers Nabs Beck's Angora.

In a game at Robison Field during the Braves' last trip to St. Louis, Evers and Beck had a "jawing" match. Beck, being unaccustomed to Evers' tactics, so forgot himself that he thought there were three out when only two men were down and started to leave the diamond. From that minute on, Evers had possession of Zinn's angora.

The wise guys can say what they want about Stallings as a manager, but to those who have watched the Braves win on nothing, Evers always has loomed up as the entity that swings the balance of power.

Evers is the spark-plug, and likewise the carburetor, crank-shaft, tires, gasoline and steering wheel of the Boston machine. He leads the fight and the galaxy of second-string men under Stallings' banner merely follow him.

The idea of a cast-off player like George Whitted, normally an infielder, batting in the clean-up berth for a club that is on the high road to the pennant, is too much for St. Louis fans to digest. They look for another reason why the Braves are galloping out in front. But they don't have to look long. Just a glance at second base.

Well, He Earns His Salary.

When the Braves were here last time, Evers set a record for aggressiveness. He fought the Cardinals, the fans, the umpire and the Braves. He antagonized his own men as much as he did the enemy, but his shafts of sarcasm seem to be just what the doctor ordered for the Boston players.

Johnny's aggressiveness almost is uncanny. Once the game begins he hasn't a friend on the field. What's more he doesn't want one. We have seen him applaud a great play by Maranville then humiliate the Rabbit by snatching a ball from his hand all in one-half of an inning.

Indeed, Evers is such an expert goat-getter that he is liable to run Zinn Beck and Polly Perritt out of the ball park before the current season in Boston is an end. Temperamentally, Beck and Perritt are not equal to the task of fighting Evers. It's an unfair battle. So why continue?

WOMEN'S GOLF RECORD TIED IN TITLE MATCH

GLENCOVE, N. Y., Sept. 17.—Eight survivors in the competition for the Women's National Golf Championship met on the links of the Nassau Country Club when play was resumed today.

The pairs were: Mrs. A. H. Jackson of Oakley, Mass., the Eastern champion, and Miss Caroline Painter of Blue Island, Ill., twice winner of the Western championship.

Miss Elaine V. Rosenthal, Homewood, Ill., and Miss Florence M. McNeely, Philadelphia.

Mrs. Jackson beat Miss Painter, 4 up and 2. The winner went out in 39, and playing out the bye-holes coming in, took 43, equalling the women's record for the course with a round of 82.

Mrs. Vanderbeck outplayed Miss Campbell all the way and won easily by 6 and 4.

Mrs. Barlow beat Miss Hyde, 1 up, and Miss Rosenthal beat Miss McNeely, 1 up (19 holes).

LOUDERMILK, TOO WILD, SENT HOME FOR SEASON

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 17.—Because he developed a sudden streak of wildness as soon as he was sold to the Browns, Grover Loudermilk has been sent home by Manager Hayden for the balance of the season. He lives at Odin, Ill.

M'GRAW ORDERS "REST CURE" FOR WEARY CHAMPIONS

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—On their return home for the last days through the home stretch the Giants have shown enough enthusiasm to plant among the fans a new seed of hope. Against the Reds they played like the champions they were at the end of last season. It was not so much the way they hit and riddled their old pal Red Ames, but it was the spirit in which they went at it. There was none of the lethargy that has characterized their work for the past month.

"Fellows, I believe the break has come," said Larry Doyle enthusiastically after the game, "and we've got a chance. This is the first good lacing we have given Ames all season and I feel it in my bones that luck is going to come our way for the first time this season."

Sad News From Boston.

But, just as Larry was talking, the nearby ticker announced that the Braves had made three runs in the eighth inning.

"Never mind about that," laughed Larry. "We can't be figuring on how Boston comes out from now on. If we take care of our own games the other teams will look after the Braves. That's been our trouble; we've been paying too much attention to what the other fellow is doing."

There is no doubt but that the whole club is feeling a revival of "pep." In the clubhouse last night the three-time champions were laughing, singing and chasing each other around the room with wet towels.

In the meantime McGraw has started a system of resting his men in relays whenever the opportunity offers, a plan that he used with good effect during the last days of the fight in 1912. After Ames was knocked from the box yesterday and a left-hander had taken his place, McGraw withdrew Doyle and Robertson and two innings later he gave George Burns a rest and sent Sandy Piez to left field. Piez was immensely pleased with the arrangement. It gave him a chance to shine before his bride, who sat in the grand stand. The young left fielder was married two weeks ago.

Tesreau on Deck Today.

Today it is McGraw's intention to shove big Jeff Tesreau against the Reds, and if the batters get away to a good start behind him three more of the Giants will get a rest. The Reds appear to be all in and have lost the peppery spirit that has characterized all their visits up to this time. This may have been due to the absence from the field of Charley Herzog, whose suspension was lifted last night.

The excellent work of Al Demaree, coming as it did upon the recent good showing of Arthur Fromme, has put the champs in position to shoot along at a rapid gait. Both of these pitchers can work regularly now.

SPORT SALAD BY L. C. DAVIS

En Passant.

MY friends, on this September morn
A smile your faces should adorn.

The Brownies copped a double bill.

To see the Browns achieve the feat.

We owe our thanks to Mr. Roth,

He muffed a fly on "Doc" Lavan
And Mr. Leary crossed the pan.

And Walter Leverenz won out.

They jumped on C. Comiskey's Sox
And knocked his pitchers from the box.

We gained a couple on the Yanks,
For which we duly render thanks.

On the Other Hand—

BUT in our joy we pause to sigh,
For in the ointment there's a fly:

The Beanies walloped Huggins' chaps

For Huggins' chances now are slim.

But consolation we derive
In that the boys are still alive.

For, while there's life there's always hope—

Welcome, Editors.

TODAY, within our midst we find
The molders of the public mind.

The editors from up the State
Have mobilized behind our gate.

We always have a welcome for
Ye gallant country editor.

Those wielders of the "facile pen."

They all observe the Golden Rule
And take their cue from Kelley Pool.

Today our old friend Jimmy Booth

He'll give an illustrated wheeze
And shoot the expurgated breeze.

We'll take the boys to see the Browns,
And then, to drive away their frowns,

We'll take them on a trip to see
Bellefontaine, also Calvary.

JIMMY CALLAHAN was very wroth when Roth handed the game to the Browns in the tenth.

THREE PRINCETON TENNIS MEN AGAINST WILLIAMS

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 17.—Princeton tennis players won three of the matches in the second round of the single championship of the Intercollegiate Lawn Tennis Association yesterday at Haverford, leaving only Princeton players to oppose R. Norris Williams II of Harvard, the present champion, in the succeeding rounds.

Williams won the first set of his match with his teammate, Richard Harte, by the score of 6 to 4, but was forced to extend himself in the second game, winning only after a brilliant rally, 8 to 6.

Church, Kidder, Vandeventer of Princeton and Williams will enter the semi-final round tomorrow.

PIKEWAY COACHES WORKING 3 SQUADS TWICE EVERY DAY

Three squads of football candidates for a total of 32 performers, and each squad under the supervision of an individual coach. All of this, coming on the second day of practice yesterday, set a new record in the annals of Washington University football history.

With the exception of a very few, who live near the University, the Piker players reside at the dormitories. They eat, sleep and spend their time under the direction of Head Coach Bill Edmunds—it was merely coach last year.

Three football sessions are held a day, one in the morning, evening and night. The routine for the day is as follows: 7, out of bed; 7:30, breakfast; 9:30 to 11, practice; 12, luncheon; 2:30 to 4:30, practice; 5, supper; 5:30, rule quiz, and bed at 9:30. In the spare time the boys pitch quoits, play checkers or indulge in less strenuous pastimes.

Capt. Pottoff arrived, yesterday, and looks as hard as nails. He took on several pounds and looks fit to hit the line with his some 165 pounds of brawn. Four members who are on an engineering party will arrive shortly. They are Milford, DeVorkin, Berry and Wright. Wright is a 180-pound sophomore who should add some little resistance to Edmund's line.

Three Coaches at Work.

Edmunds had what for the present is his first squad running through signal practice. They lined up as follows: Ends—Myers and Bubb; tackles, McRoberts, Grey and Jehle; guards, Werner, Coyne and Meinholtz; center, Wetzel; quarterback, Davis; halfbacks, Martin and Pottoff; fullback, Lewis.

Assistant Coach Thomas had a squad of 12 men and also had them calling off signals, besides strenuous practice at the fundaments. "Dog" Krause, the third member of the coaching staff was engaged in prepping the guards and centers. Edmunds announced after practice that he would continue the same work throughout the week, and not have a scrimmage until possibly Monday.

Keogan's Squad Numbers 21.

St. Louis University's squad is growing. Yesterday, 21 men were on the campus, while two new huskies are expected today. Coach Keogan is looking for Vernon and Watkins this afternoon, and hopes to see Kelley, the Detroit University man, by Saturday. Morning practice will start next week while Keogan has already instituted the evening quiz.

C. B. C. Team Has Early Game.

The Christian Brothers' College squad is the fartherest advanced of the local elevens. Trick plays for the game with Illinois, Oct. 3, are now in order at the Easton avenue campus. Coach Ward's main obstacle now is the selection of a punter. Shea, Collins and Rodgers have been taking their turns at booting, but all three will have to improve before they can hope to punt on equal terms with Fogue, the Illini star.

High School Teams Progress.

Soldan and McKinley are coming along in great style. The squads have now reached the stage of running formations, and Saturday may play practice contests. Soldan will probably play an eleven of old grads, in which they will meet severe opposition. Chalfont has not turned out for practice yet at the West End school, although he has not yet been barred from the squad owing to professionalism. The principals will take action this week so as to do away with all controversy. Central is coming along, but Coach Walker is hampered with a lack of material.

Smith, Manual and Principia will inaugurate practice Monday. The prep schools open late and, consequently, are hampered. Both schools will have to build up practically new elevens this year, as a large number was lost through graduation.

$10,000-a-Year Manager Turns "Washwoman" for St. Louis Fed Players

The St. Louis Federals boast of the highest salaried "washwoman" in or out of baseball, if the reports of Willis E. Johnson, business manager of the club, are true. The story runs that after the flood in Kansas City, Labor day, the uniforms of the local Fed players were washed from the clubhouse onto the field. When the water receded, the clothes were found scattered about the diamond, very muddy.

The team was scheduled to leave Kansas City that night, and something had to be done with the muddy "unies." So Fielder Jones, a $10,000-a-year tactician, took the uniforms in hand and scrubbed off the mud, thereby earning his salary.

Colored Athletes in Marathon.

A four-mile Marathon race open to all colored schoolboys in the city between the ages of 12 and 18 years will be held Saturday afternoon. Twenty-one entries have already been received, representing many of the colored schools and athletic clubs. The event will start at 4 p. m. at the east approach of the new city hall and end up at 3400 Goode avenue.

WRAY'S COLUMN

"There Aint Goin' to Be No Core."

WITH the National and American League leaders already beginning to make eyes at the world's series apple, Little Jimmy Gilmore of Federal Leaguedom, is dropping ineffective hints about being let in on the core. But, Jimmy lad, there ain't agoin' to be no core, this time.

The chance of your getting a tooth into this world's series tidbit, James, is about the same that the Wabadas have to get a slice of the city championship pie.

• • •

Why Help Your Enemy?

FANCY the face of Ban Johnson when he receives the statement from the Federal League president, announcing that he has declared himself in on that world's series outup! He would curdle an onion at 1000 yards.

Organized Baseball has on its hands one beeg-a fight. It certainly is not going to put into the mitts of the parties it is trying to crush the weapons wherewith to fight back, to wit —FUNDS!

• • •

Nevertheless, the baseball world would be pleased to see a third entrant into the world's series games. It would procrastinate the settlement of the 1914 quarrel, it is true; BUT IT WOULD LEND A NEW ELEMENT OF LOUT!

That is to say, it might add doubt to the situation some other year. With the Connie Mack trust still in control, there seems to be not whatever about the outcome, this season.

• • •

Connie Mack Wrong for Once.

CONNIE MACK, who can hit the nail on the head without mashing a thumb oftener than most baseball men, seems to have battered the veneer all around his mark when he declared that the Giants have weakened owing to "autos and soft living."

More concrete reasons for the Giants' failure than accusations of too much luxury are at hand. Perhaps the autos, golf, etc., didn't help any; but a much more logical explanation of the fall-down of the Giants is seen in the loss of Herzog, Shafer and Ames, and the unaccountable failure of Marquard to win, although pitching good ball most of the time.

• • •

Swelling of the Belfry Hurts.

THESE factors in themselves are sufficient to make up for the lack of punch shown by this year's Giants, as compared to the peppery boys of previous seasons.

Add to the deterioration mentioned an unwarranted confidence in their ability to cut loose and overtake any club in the race, when ready, and you have the situation accounted for without lugging in the "high places" excuse.

• • •

Fred Clarke's Record Goes.

FRED CLARKE'S escutcheon will have a blotch on it at the end of the present season, unless the miraculous happens. The Pirate leader boasts that he has never chaperoned a second division team since his sojourn at Pittsburg. In all the years that Clarke, Wagner & Co. have made life miserable for contenders, not once has his club failed to be in the hunt at the close—up to the present year.

Prospects now are that Clarke will finish fifth, or worse. The Pirates are seven games out of first division. In other words, Clarke has just the same chance to finish in the first division that the Cubs have to win the pennant. Which, you'll have to admit, is slim enough to slip through the eye of a microbe.

• • •

Clarke's team is one of the many mysteries of the baseball world afforded by this mysterious 1914 season. True to its paper form, the club started out to run away with the race. Then, as if suddenly called off, the team fell back, even into last place. Now it is coming again.

Clarke's failure is only a shade more mysterious than the unexpected success of the Boston and St. Louis clubs. The whole situation makes one feel that, as an exact science, baseball is a very fine game of chance.

• • •

Waking Up at Last.

FOR years the tramp promoter of auto races has jumped into St. Louis annually, presented a cheap or a fake racing program and then ducked out, retreating with a large and quickly mobilized army of "iron men." The wanderers got the cash; St. Louis got left, acquiring at the same time a very hard feeling toward auto race promoters.

Now that St. Louis promoters are trying to put the auto racing game on a legitimate plane here and to keep within our own city limits whatever coin is to be expended in this form of entertainment, the public is indifferent or suspicious. OUR HOME ENTERPRISE HAS SUFFERED FOR THE SINS OF OTHERS.

The events here next Sunday should not be made the goat for the sins of outsiders. The local promoters have shown evidence of a desire to keep faith with the public—which is something calculated to excite awe, ever respect, in the breasts of maltreated St. Louisans.

• • •

More Blacklist Necessary.

THE bad pennies still turn up now and then. There's Abraham Attell climbing on the map again, out on the coast, after being pushed off several times and falling off voluntarily at least once. Dispatches state that Featherweight Champion Johnny Kilbane will fight Attell 20 rounds for the title, Oct. 15, at Los Angeles, Cal.

This match should excite somewhat more interest than a battle between Jack Johnson and Kid Williams. Attell has been beaten by Kilbane when Abe was already on the wane. Since then several years have elapsed and Attell has in that time slipped entirely out of the limelight.

On one occasion he announced publicity in a St. Louis ring, after quitting in six rounds, that he was all in and that he was done forever with the fight game.

He made a weak effort to "come back" and did, natch; that he can ever be of anything like championship caliber again seems absurd. ATTELL IS A DEAD ISSUE.

If the bout is fought as scheduled at Vernon, it will be in the nature of a charity. Opponents for Johnny Kilbane are very scarce, these days—which may account for the match.

Federals Claim 1914 Attendance Is Now 1,750,000

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—Clubs of the Federal League have played to a total attendance of 1,750,000 persons to date, according to a statement issued today by President James A. Gilmore of the Federal organization.

The statement was made in support of the "gentleman's challenge" issued last night by President Gilmore to members of the National Baseball Commission, asking representation of the Federal League in the world's championship series.

Gilmore proposed a post-season series between the pennant winners of the National, American and Federal League to decide the world's championship.

Feds Get New Orleans Pitcher.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 17.—Finis Wilson, member of this year's pitching staff of the New Orleans Southern Association baseball team, wired a sporting writer here tonight from his home in Kentucky that he had signed with the Brooklyn Federals and would report for duty Monday.

Those Lucky Athletics.

IF, as now seems probable, the Boston Braves win the pennant in the National League, the fact will mean about $1000 or $1500 per man to the Mackmen.

With New York as an opponent the world's series bonus would not have netted $2000 per man to the winners. Absolutely no interest could be manifested in a clash between the oft beaten Giants and the team that has outclassed them in the past.

On the other hand Boston is wild about the Braves, and a new element, of uncertain strength, will have been introduced into the world's championship arena, if the Braves win.

Boston appears to be out of its class, against Mack's men. BUT UNTIL IT'S PROVEN IT MUST GET THE BENEFIT OF ANY LINGERING DOUBT.

The team has shown that it outclasses the National League by running through the entire gamut of teams and shooting to the front within two months. This means applying percentage for this period of about 700. It is doubtful if the Athletics could be figured to do much better.

This line of dope will be used on the world's series, however fallacious; and there will be a lot of wagering, at odds, that the Braves will beat the Athletics.

Pretty good.

THE POST-DISPATCH'S DAILY RECORD OF MARKETS AND FINANCE

BANK OF ENGLAND GOLD INCREASE $6,000,000

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"Pretty much all of the financial market interest was converged today on reports that European investors were showing a disposition, either to bid for a share in the forthcoming New York City loan or, where they hold maturing obligations of the city, to convert such obligations into the new 6 per cents. The amount of applications for this purpose will not be known much before the subscription lists close next Tuesday; but all indications will be closely watched for the attitude of the European capitalists in this matter is of paramount importance. If this double process continues, the bank should presently be i na strong position.

"The Bank of England made another remarkable statement. During the past week it has gained $6,000,000 gold, presumably obtained through deposits to its credit in the Transvaal and through our own shipments to Ottawa. Its banking reserve has increased $10,000,000, while its rediscounts have decreased by $15,600,000; as a consequence of this double movement the ratio of reserve to liabilities rises to 21¼ per cent, as compared with 19⅞ a week ago and 14⅝ in the panic week at the opening of August.

"There are several interesting aspects of this statement. The increase in gold holdings not only brings that account to a figure $105,500,000 over the low level of Aug. 7, but the total reached by this week has been exceeded in only five weeks of the bank's whole history. Those weeks occurred in March and June, 1896, when New York was exporting gold in quantity, because of our country's currency inflation. The amount now held, £48,720,000, in sterling values, is only $240,000 under the highest-priced total ever reached—which was the £49,200,000 of June 24, in 1896. As for the bank's rediscounts, they are still $237,000,000 above the figure of Aug. 7, and $332,000,000 above the last week of July; but they are $40,000,000 below the maximum of the season, reached on Sept. 2.

London Remittances Decline.

"The movement of the exchange market was highly interesting as against a ruling price of 4.98 yesterday, for sight drafts on London, the quotation today was 4.96. The rate for cable remittances was 4.96½, as compared with yesterday's price of 4.98¾. This decline of 2 cents in the pound sterling was the most important fall in the price of London remittances that has taken place on any day since the exchange market broke, two weeks ago, on the news of the plan to finance the city. It naturally excited comment and was directly ascribed to the offering of exchange against foreign purchases of the New York City notes. In addition to bids for the notes received by the London bankers direct there were large purchases negotiated through this market by London applicants who saw a profit in buying the notes here and in selling the exchange on themselves at the relatively high exchange rates which now prevail.

"This has been done to a considerable extent with the result that the foreign exchange market was distinctly weak today, in comparison with the quotations that have lately prevailed in addition to the offerings of bills against the purchases by London applicants for the New York City loan foreign exchange market in general showed a better supply of bills, due in part to the increased shipments of grain to Europe. The exchange bankers did a large business and the supply of exchange on other cities than London was heavy enough to indicate that the resumption of fairly normal trading was not far off. The bankers had a large demand for exchange from mercantile interests and it was apparent that with the decline in the price of exchange some large remittances that had been held up since last month were made.

HARVESTER CO. DIVIDEND PASSED.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—It was decided at a meeting of the directors of the International Harvester Coorporatioon here today not to declare the usual dividend on the common stock of the corporation in view of the existing European conditions. This action applies only, as stated to the dividends of the International Harvester Corporation, under which name the foreign business is conducted and not to the International Harvester Co. of New Jersey, the domestic concern, whose regular quarterly dividend of 1¼ per cent on common stock, payable Oct. 15 to stock of record on Sept. 20, was declared.

London Bank Statement.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—The weekly statement of the Bank of England shows the following changes:

Bullion increased £1,212,063.
Other securities decreased £3,130,000.
Public deposits decreased £5,763,000.
Other deposits increased £4,337,000.
Notes reserve increased £1,854,000.
Government securities decreased £78,000.

The proportion of the bank's reserve to liability this week is 21.17 per cent; last week it was 19.81 per cent.

Rate of discount, 5 per cent.

Liverpool Cotton.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 17.—Cotton spot in moderate demand, prices 20 points lower; middling fair, 6.84d; good middling, 6.36d; middling, 5.80d; low middling, 5.32d; good ordinary, 4.36d; ordinary, 3.72d; sales, 3900 bales, including 3000 American on the basis of 580 for middling. Imports, 2074 bales, including 1211 American.

Chicago Grain Markets.

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—Wheat prices recovered today from an early dip that resulted from a selling drive by pit speculators. Resting orders from commission houses absorbed the offerings, and when shorts attempted to cover it was found that the market was virtually bare of any floating supply. After opening ½c lower to ¼c up values declined ½c to ¾c all around, but then made a recovery in full.

Corn swayed with wheat. Business was of only a scattering character. The opening, which ranged from 1⅞c off to ¼c advance, was followed by an upturn that offset most of the loss.

Oats trading was not nearly as broad as the rule has been of late. The curtailment of demand led to a moderate setback in prices.

Higher values for hogs lifted the provision market. There was a rise of 5c to 25c, but not all of the gains were held.

Wheat futures were dull, weak and lower at the opening Thursday, and trading was extremely light. Efforts were made to boost prices on the shortage in the Canadian crop, but they were offset by a report that Emperor William and the Czar are trying to arrange for peace.

Minneapolis reported that two millers were selling wheat in that market and this had a further depressing effect on prices.

Receipts in the Northwest and at Winnipeg continue heavy and stocks at Duluth increased 1,502,000 bu for four days. Minneapolis reports country receipts increasing and stocks at that point now total 2,883,000 bu. Flour shipments from Minneapolis were 70,000 barrels. There were small hedging sales in that market at the opening.

Liverpool cables were strong and higher, and Argentine markets were unchanged at the recent advance. European markets were bullish and the Canadian markets were quiet.

Corn was also lower, but there was little life to the trading, as Liverpool cables were higher and there was little domestic news of importance. The Corn Products Co. is said to be running its Eastern plants on Argentine corn, and the local demand is light. A further reduction in the stocks of contract grade corn in Chicago is expected, and local stocks are extremely light.

Oats were also dull and weak, although crop figures from Winnipeg show a heavy reduction in the yield of oats in that country. There appeared to be nothing doing in oats in the East, as the heavy sales Tuesday were for export for immediate shipment.

December wheat opened ⅝c lower at $1.09, sold up to $1.09½, down to $1.07 and rallied to $1.07⅝, where it stuck for some time.

May wheat was neglected early. It was offered down to $1.14½ and had $1.14⅝ bid with no sales in the early part of the session.

December corn opened ¼@½c lower at 71¼c, and was offered down to 71⅛c, but rallied and sold up to 71⅝c, where it stuck for some time.

December oats opened ⅝c lower at 50⅛c, and were offered down to 49½c, but later were bid up to 49⅝c.

December wheat closed at $1.07½ bid, 1⅞c lower than on Wednesday.

September corn had 76c bid, with none offered.

December oats closed at 49½c asked, the low point for the day and 1c lower than on Wednesday.

Liverpool—Recent rain has placed soil in fine condition for preparation of the new crop throughout Europe. Sowing time of the belligerent countries as taken from the Corn Trade News: Germany, Hungary and Austria in September and October; France, November to January; Russia, September to November; Great Britain, October to December. German rye, September and October, and Russian oats March and April.

Melbourne, Australia — Federal Commission having supervision over foodstuffs recommended that action be taken for the extension of the Australian wheat area at the next planting, the British and Australian Governments guaranteeing to take a certain quantity at the prevailing market price.

The Winnipeg crop report says: Spring wheat yield, all Canada, 15 bushels, as compared with 20.81 last year and 19.2 average four years. Oats, 32.5, against 38.7 last year and 36.3 four-year average. Total wheat crop this year, 159,660,000 bu, against 231,717,000 last year; oats, 327,732,000, against 404,669,000 last year.

Argentine cables say: Weather continues fine. Wheat is quiet and unchanged; corn steady, with Buenos Aires ⅝ to ⅞ higher and Rosa Rio net for the day 2⅛ higher. Arrivals are fair and the demand for shipment large and foreign bids are higher. It is expected that the surplus will be disposed of.

Broomhall says: The principal reason for the hardening tendency of foreign markets is due to the large demand from millers and the diminution in the offers from North America. It is believed that many farmers will not be disposed to sell freely from now on, and when the demand from those countries which have been backward in purchases commences it will militate for an upward movement in prices.

Export clearances Thursday were: Wheat, 670,000 bu; corn, 13,000 bu; oats, 1,523,000 bu; flour, 64,000 bbls; wheat and flour equal to 958,000 bu.

Chicago received 344 cars of wheat, of which 153 cars were contract, against 95 cars a year ago. Corn receipts were 109 cars, of which 44 cars were contract grade, against 265 cars a year ago.

Receipts of oats at Chicago were 217 cars, of which 41 cars were contract, against 265 cars a year ago.

St. Louis receipts of wheat were 85 cars, against 78 cars a week ago, and 36 cars a year ago.

ST LOUIS MONEY MARKET

There have been a number of bankers from the South visiting in this city this week and all unite in saying that the local reserve institutions seem to be granting more and more assistance to their respective sections. It is recognized that it may take some time for every district to receive the help it requires, but the evidence is not lacking that genuine assistance is being given wherever possible. Interest rates were unchanged today, although there was some evidence of animation in the market. Demand funds were offered at 8 and 7½ per cent, with 7 per cent bid. Time money was 6 to 7 per cent.

Sugar Market Steady.

LIVESTOCK.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., Sept. 17.—Comparative receipts table:

	Today	Week Ago	Year Ago
Cattle	7,000	7,000	38,00
Hogs	8,000	7,000	8,000
Sheep	2,500	43,00	4,500
Horses and mules	100	550	500

NATIVE CATTLE—Today's supply was fairly large, amounting all told to 3000 head; quality showed a wide range, with common kinds predominant. Trade was rather slow throughout, as sellers had hard work to hold the market to a steady basis. No choice toppy steers were available.

SOUTHERN CATTLE—Right at 4000 quarantine cattle got in today, a pretty liberal run for the latter part of the week. Bulk of the offering consisted of canners and cutters recruited from southeastern territory. Market ruled strong on yearlings and easier on other kinds.

HOGS—The supply was but fair and as there was a good demand the market opened on a 5@10c higher basis. The top was $9.35 and the bulk of the desirable hogs went at $9@9.25, which shows to be a dime above the top and bulk Wednesday. Best hogs 180 lbs. found sale at $9.25 and up to the top, while the mixed and plain grades went at $8.85@9.15, and the rough packers $8@8.25. Best grade of lights found sale at $9.00@9.30, fair $8.50@8.90; best sort of pigs $8.15@8.50; fair $7.85@8.00, and the poor grades $6.25@7.25. The close was on a weak basis.

SHEEP—With a moderate supply on sale there was no change to the trade. Best lambs sold at $8.75@9.00, mutton sheep $5.25@5.50, stockers and choppers $3.75@4.50 and bucks $4.25@4.50.

HORSES AND MULES—There was no change in the market today. About the usual Thursday market was staged. Not many buyers in the mule market today and the general situation was rather quiet.

The Jarr Family

Drawn for the Post-Dispatch
By VIC.

By ROY L. McCARDELL.

Mr. Jarr Wallows in Optimism After His Fireless Fire.

"THINGS look pretty bad, don't they?" Mr. Jarr inquired sorrowfully, as, in company with Mrs. Jarr, he came to the home next that had undergone the water cure for a non-existent fire.

Looking bad was no exaggeration. The paper hung from the walls, the ceilings were down and the furniture was ruined.

"It was all your fault!" whimpered Mrs. Jarr. "If you had only listened to me this wouldn't have happened!"

"Listened to you?" cried Mr. Jarr. "I did listen to you, but that's what started everything. Willie came home with a snake and let it fall on the floor at dusk and you began to scream"——

"I know, I know!" interrupted Mrs. Jarr sorrowfully. "Blame me! Say I am the cause of everything! I wouldn't do that to you."

"Why, I'm not blaming you at all, my dear!" said Mr. Jarr. "It just couldn't be helped. Let us be thankful that none of us were injured."

"Yes, I know, I know," sobbed Mrs. Jarr, wiping her eyes.

"Didn't you want to move? And the fire breaks our lease," said Mr. Jarr, comforting her.

"But the furniture—the furniture and all our clothes!" whimpered Mrs. Jarr.

"You forgot we are insured, and that the adjuster is going to give us a total loss, for, fortunately, everything was insured against fire and damage by water," counseled Mr. Jarr. "As I figure it, we will be able to furnish our new home beautifully."

"But my clothes—all my clothes are ruined!" moaned Mrs. Jarr.

"Haven't you been saying you hadn't a single new dress?" asked Mr. Jarr. "The insurance will permit you to get new clothes. Come, cheer up!"

"But the piano—we had it nearly paid for!"

"Yes, I know; and you were complaining that by the time it was paid for it wouldn't be worth playing on. I called up the piano people and they tell me that they insure their pianos wherever placed until they are paid for, and even were this not the case they would replace our ruined instrument with a brand-new one of much better quality and far handsomer."

"But my pictures, my carpets!"

"Haven't you wished a hundred times you had an excuse to destroy the crayon portraits of Uncle Henry and Aunt Hetty and your mother, but you were afraid to?" asked Mr. Jarr. "They are destroyed now." And Mr. Jarr picked up a painted plaster life size bust of "The Girl With the Cherries," and before Mrs. Jarr could stop him he hammered two unsoathed crayon portraits with it and made a total loss of all. "The Girl With the Cherries" had been Mr. Jarr's favorite excuse for leaving home ever since the gloomy Christmas day his wife's mother had presented it to him.

"It's all very well for you to try to cheer me up," moaned Mrs. Jarr, "and to say we will have hardwood floors in our new home and that I've always wanted hardwood floors, and that what we will get for the damaged carpets from the insurance people will pay for rugs, but what other comfort have I?"

"Why!" cried Mr. Jarr joyously. "Our rural relatives were going to visit us this week and now we can wire them the joyous woeful things that the old home ain't what it used to be, and never was! Whoopee!"

And Mrs. Jarr was compelled to confess that sometimes things did happen for the best.

She Knew Too Much.

He seemed to be absent-minded and dreaming.

And the very next evening he went out for another ride in his car, but with a girl who didn't know so much.

HICKVILLE DOINGS

From Our Hickville Correspondent

Hazen Conklin

Personals and Locals.

BERT BELL has hung out his shingle as a insurance agent, bein' ready to insure Hickvillans agin dyin, burnin up and and havin accidents to happen to them. Amos Crabb, our local sneerer, told Bert he'd better take out a policy on hisself, for if any Hickvillans git landed it will be a accident. Also he sneered that there wouldn't be no use tryin to insure the town itself, as it was already considerubble dead.

Ezra Hicks Jr., son of our local Creesus, who is learning to run his pa's new autymobeel, says as how it ain't no job to make it run. The difficulty is to make it run where he wants to go.

Ef there was a law compelin' folks to live up to their promises there'd be a sight fewer made.

There's a lot of folks who could make considerubble more hay while the sun shines if they'd utilize the rainy days gettin' their implements in workin' shape.

Dud Cooke has been appointed city engineer of Hickville, which ain't no city and which ain't got nothin' to engineer. But Dud wanted sumthin' to show he was studyin engineerin, and Town Clerk Hippolyte Harkness give him the job as long as there wasn't no salary to pay. Dud's feelin mighty set up at being a person with a title. He's havin official stationery printed, which he says is quite fittin seein as how he's by way of bein a stationary engineer.

Aunt Jane Haggart has bin under the weather the last few days, by mistake she et some of the vittles she'd cooked up for her city boarders instead of her private fodder she usually prepares.

Silas Madder was finishin up cuttin his oats yestidday when a big blacksnake drew his attention writhin around on the ground and actin jest like he was fightin sumthin. Silas happened to look over to where his applejack jug was restin under an alder clump, and he see it was on its side with the cork out. He run over and found the jug empty and the cork out. There wasn't none of the applejack split on the ground, so he knowed it had bin drank. Knowin blacksnakes milk cows, he had his suspicions where the applejack went to. So he killed the snake and sure enough it was chock full of applejack. Silas has figgered out now why the snake acted like it did. It had the "D. T.'s" and was fightin the other snakes it saw.

Rev. East has handed in his resignation to the local church, he havin received a call to the church at Hackory Junction at a salary $200 a year more'n he's bin gettin here. Amos Crabb, our local sneerer, says it ain't a "call," but a "raise."
